$1,000 Fine Meted Out To Garrison

Judges' Charge Of Defamation Upheld In Orleans

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Dist. Atty. Jim Garrison was fined $1,-00 today for defaming the eight New Orleans criminal district judges in a quarrel over a vice investigation.

The maximum penalty possible under conviction on the charge of defamation of character was one year in prison and a $3,000 fine.

The judges pressed charges against Garrison after he accused them of blocking his probe of French Quarter vice and said the situation raised "interesting questions about racketeer influences in our eight vacation - minded judges."

The feud between the 42-year-old crusading district attorney and the judges erupted when they refused to approve expense accounts submitted by his undercover agents.

Garrison's trial was before Judge William Ponder of Many, appointed to hear the case by the state Supreme Court. The prosecutor was state Atty. Gen. Jack Gremillion. Garrison was defended by two private lawyers.

Judge Ponder said he did not impose the maximum punishment because of mitigating circumstances.

"I would be less than frank if I did not say the defamatory statement was not issued without provocation," he said.

Ponder added, however, that since all eight of the judges testified the defamatory statement was untrue some form of punishment was necessary.

After defamation charges were filed, the Orleans Parish grand jury, on complaints filed by Garrison, indicted Judge J. Bernard Cocke on charges of contempt and malfeasance. He was acquitted on both counts.

The charge of malfeasance was based on Judge Cocke's refusal to approve the expense accounts of the undercover agents who probed the nightclub and bar section of the New Orleans French Quarter.

The contempt charge involved grand jury secrecy. It was based on questions concerning grand jury testimony that Judge Cocke asked a witness during a trial in his court.

Garrison, who went into office last May on a promise to clean up vice, said the judges action against him meant:

"Don't rock the boat, son. You're not supposed to investigate anything."

The judges called Garrison's criticism "an irritational diatribe." They said he exceeded his authority in trying to assume police functions.

Bandit Helps Himself To Store's Cash

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — A bandit showed a pistol to clerk Lloyd A. Anderson Wednesday night and demanded the money in the liquor store's cash register.

"Get it yourself," Anderson retorted. "This is a self-service store."

The holdup man helped himself.

Bipartisanship Hits Bottom In Congress

WASHINGTON (AP) — With Democrats and Republicans shaking accusing fingers at each other, bipartisan foreign policy has touched bottom in Congress' frustrated uproar over the Soviet takeover of Cuba.

Since the 1940s when the late Sen. Arthur Vandenberg, R-Mich., started it all, it has been politically fashionable for office seekers and holders to proclaim their adherence to the idea that partisanship stops at the water's edge.

Bipartisanship has been reserved for programs, such as foreign aid, where the executive felt he needed every vote he could scrape up in Congress to put over proposals that lacked political appeal among the voters.

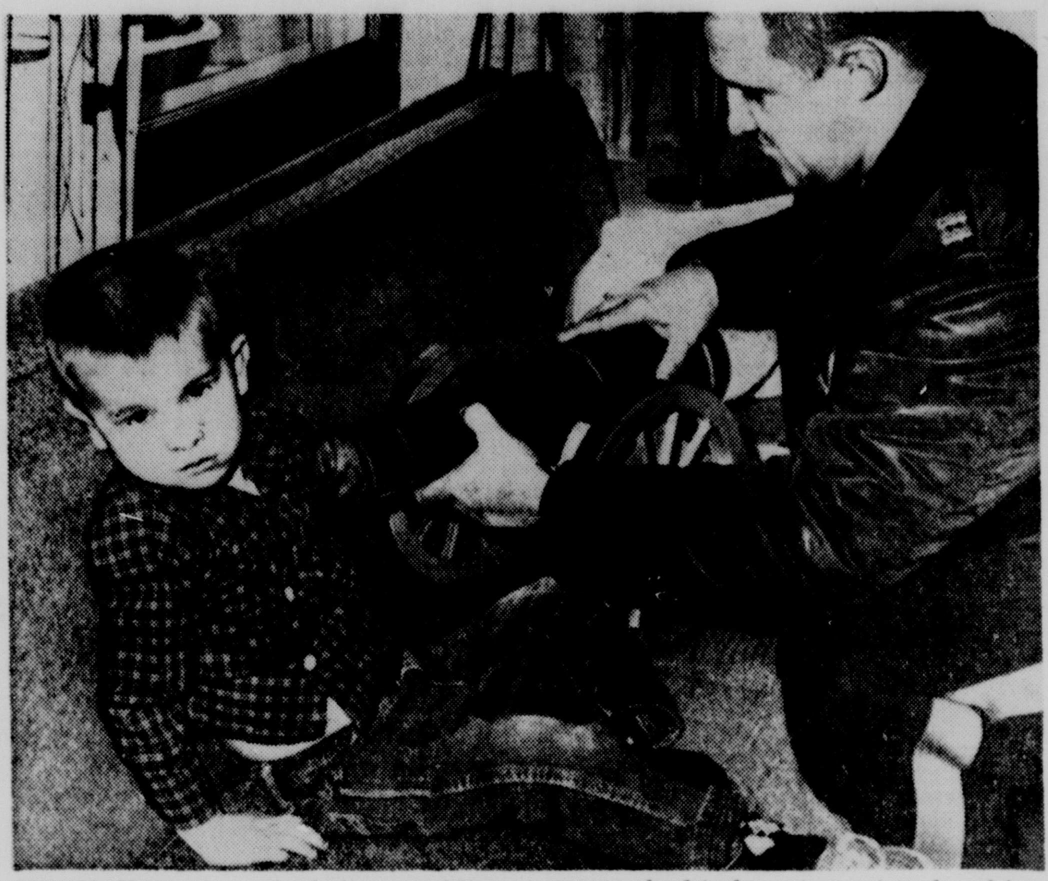
But when it came to such decisions as those of former President Harry S. Truman to send American fighting men to Korea, Congress learned of the decision only after it was made.

TOLD FINALLY

Similarly, the present disturbance stems in significant part from (1) President Kennedy's rejection of Republican contentions that there was an offensive threat in Cuba and (2) GOP claims that Republicans were not consulted before Kennedy decided last October to order a quarantine on arms shipments to the island.

Party leaders were summoned to the White House at the time. Their testimony is unanimous that although their comments were asked for, they were told finally that the decision already had been made and would be put into effect.

This and other actions have led Sen. Bourke B. Hickenlooper, R-Iowa, to declare "there is no bipartisan foreign policy." Despite this, he contended that Republicans contribute 100 per cent to "unity in time of crisis" involving decisions in which they didn't share.



EVEN FOR A make-believe soldier, war games can be fearsome and fatiguing as 3-year-old Randy Caulfield of Merriam, Kan., discovered. His arm got stuck in a toy cannon. Finally the cannon had to be cut apart to free him. Working on the toy is police Capt. Michael Donahue. Randy wasn't hurt. (AP Wirephoto)

Kennon Avoids State Politics In Talk Today

Robert F. Kennon, a candidate for governor, who hopes to recapture the seat he once held, was in Monroe today, but he wasn't talking politics publicly.

Kennon addressed the Monroe Rotary Club at noon, stressing the need for "economy in government especially on the national level."

But when asked about his candidacy for governor, he said, "I don't want to talk about state politics."

However, he added, "I am going to run for governor in due course."

Kennon planned to spend some time at the Virginia Hotel this afternoon where he had a room to "freshen up" and meet with friends.

He has said for some time that he would be a candidate for governor, but is declining to talk about the race at the moment.

The Rotary Club luncheon was sprinkled with local political personalities, including public officials and persons who plan to take an active role in the upcoming governor's race.

Among those present were Sen. Jamar Adcock, who is supporting Columbia Attorney John J. McKeithen; Rep. Mike John Jr., who hasn't indicated he will support anyone; Fred Huenefeld Jr., a member of the State Welfare Board, who is supporting Kennon, and Gilbert Faulk, a former Ouachita lawmaker who will support Director of Public Works Claude Kirkpatrick if Kirkpatrick runs.

ON CHICAGO'S WEST SIDE

Negro Alderman Shot To Death

CHICAGO (AP) — Alderman Benjamin F. Lewis of the 24th Ward, a Negro Democratic leader who was re-elected Tuesday by an overwhelming margin, was found handcuffed and shot to death in his office today.

Lewis had moved into the office Wednesday night. A janitor who noticed that a light in the office was burning found Lewis on the floor of the second-floor office beside a desk.

A janitor, Joseph Brown, said several empty shells were near the body and he saw one bullet wound in the back of the victim's head.

FIRST TO SERVE

Lewis defeated Jeff Clifford Alford in Tuesday's election by a margin of 12-1.

Lewis, whose vote was reported unofficially as 12,189 to Alford's 888, was formerly a city building inspector.

He was the first Negro to serve as alderman of the 24th Ward which is estimated to have a population 80 per cent Negro.

Eugene Belton, the first policeman to enter the office and a high school classmate of Lewis, identified the body.

Belton said Lewis' hands were cuffed in front of him, and a burned out cigarette was between the fingers of one hand.

Belton said he was a block away from Lewis' office building when the janitor ran into the street and waved to him and his partner, James Jackson.

Lewis' wife, Ella, arrived at the office shortly ater the body was found.

Alford also is a Negro.

Small Number Of Soviet Troops Leaving Cuba

WASHINGTON (AP)—One Soviet ship carrying a small number of troops has left Cuba under the new Soviet promise to pull several thousand out of Cuba by March 15.

Reporting this today, officials said four other ships are known to be on the way to Cuba. The ship have a potential capacity to haul away eight or nine thousand Soviet soldiers.

Presumably the one ship known to have sailed is the luxury liner Baltika, reported Feb. 21 to have set out with a then undetermined number aboard.

MARCH 15

Commenting on a New York Times news service report that the Russians had notified the United States that a force would be left on the island, Asst. Secretary of State Robert Manning said:

"We have received no such notification. Nor have we drawn any such inference from any communication or conversation with them."

The Times story said the notice from Moscow was interpreted in Washington as meaning a pull-out of up to 7,000 men, leaving about 10,000.

Soviet Ambassador Anatoly Dobrynin told Secretary of State Dean Rusk on Feb. 18 that the Russians would remove several thousand troops from Cuba by March 15. Shortly afterward Central Intelligence Agency Director John A. McCone told a congressional committee that four ships were en route to Cuba. Officials then understood substantial troops removals would begin early this week. The removals did not occur in any substantial numbers.

It is assumed by authorities here that the four ships now enroute are supposed to remove the troops necessary to make good on Moscow's promise.

Laos Official Victim Of U.S. Variety

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Kennedy noticed Wednesday that Quinim Pholsena, Laotian foreign minister was missing from a Laotian delegation paying a farewell call at the White House.

He asked Savang Vatthana, king of Laos, where Pholsena was. The President was told that Pholsena had picked up a case of "Asian flu" on his trip to Washington.

"That was American flu," Kennedy said.

Defense Of Bible Reading Before Court

WASHINGTON (AP) — Counsel for a Pennsylvania school district argued to the Supreme Court today that his state's requirement for Bible reading in public school is not a religious practice but a means of teaching morality.

Philip H. Ward III, attorney for the Abington Township school board, said the people of Pennsylvania through their legislature had picked a common source of morality by use of the Bible.

His contention brought numerous questions from the court justices as to how the Bible's religious teaching and its morality teaching could be differentiated.

Justice Black told Ward that in the last 2,000 years, "the greatest years were when government didn't force the Bible on people, and the worst years were those when some government official forced it on them."

Ward agreed but insisted that the Pennsylvania law requiring the reading of 10 verses of the Bible at the daily opening of schools was not a religious act.

"If we wanted to teach religion we could do it in a different way," Ward said. "We could pick out passages from the Bible for example."

The arguments over the use of the Bible and recitation of the Lord's Prayer at school exercises in Maryland and Pennsylvania began Wednesday and will be concluded today.

In the Pennsylvania case, a three-judge court in Philadelphia ruled unconstitutional the state's law requiring Bible reading. The ruling was given in a suit by Mr. and Mrs. Edward L schempp, who have two children in the Abington Township school. The Schempps are Unitarians.

In the Maryland case, that state's highest court upheld constitutionality of Bible reading and use of the Lord's prayer. The Maryland court thus rejected a complaint by a Baltimore mother and her 16-year-old son, who are atheists.

Ward pressed the argument that Pennsylvania in its Bible reading practice had "cut adrift from theology," and that because it permitted pupils to be excused during the Bible reading the state law did not violate the Constitution.

School, Ballot Main Areas Of Concern

Urges Congress To Fight Disease Of Discrimination

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Kennedy appealed to a divided Congress today to reinforce the Negro's right to vote and to attend desegregated schools in a nation where he said "the cruel disease of discrimination" still exists nearly everywhere.

For the first time, in a special message, Kennedy outlined a specific civil rights program to Congress. In addition to legislation directed at the ballot and the school house, he asked for an extension of the life of the Civil Rights Commission, with expanded duties.

"The program outlined in this message," Kennedy said, "should not provide the occasion for sectional bitterness."

Yet White House officials told reporters they recognize the built-in possibilities of a filibuster by Southerners in a Senate which has just rejected a bid to clamp down on filibustering. They said, though, that the program was tailored in realistic style, that it ought to be passed, and there is a good chance it will.

NATIONAL EFFORT

In the century since Lincoln's Emancipation Proclamation, the President's message said, slavery has vanished but progress for the Negro has been blocked and delayed too often.

"Equality before the law," he said, "has not always meant equal treatment and opportunity. And the harmful, wasteful and wrongful results of racial discrimination and segregation still appear in virtually every aspect of national life, in virtually every part of the nation."

Kennedy credited his administration with a sparkling two-year record on civil rights. But he said a broad national effort still is needed, an effort embracing state and local governments, private citizens and organizations, and the congressional machinery.

His requests for legislation are expected to be submitted within

Papermakers Stand Against Meter Removal

Papermakers Local Union Number 364 is opposing a Chamber of Commerce request that the City of West Monroe remove parking meters from the downtown area.

City Council members have received letters from Lewis Stansell, president of Ouachita Valley Local No. 364 of the United Paper Makers and Paper Workers, listing five reasons why the union believes the meters should continue in use.

Tonight at 7, the Retail Merchants Division of the Chamber of Commerce will hold an open meeting in the second floor assembly room of First National Bank, to discuss ways of improving trade in downtown West Monroe.

The Division asked the City Council on February 12 to remove the meters, on a trial or permanent basis, to see if this would entice more customers to the downtown area. The request followed a Chamber survey which showed that more than 15 downtown stores are standing vacant. Since that time other stores have held "going out of business" sales.

Stansell points out that the Union, which represents 358 members, met on February 14 and heard several objections to removing the meters.

The objections, unanimously approved by the union, are:

Favoritism Is Searched Out In Plane Award

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. John L. McClellan, D-Ark., said today he will expect the secretaries of Defense and Air Force to explain what he termed "unusual" steps in the award of the TFX warplane contract.

General Dynamics Corp. of Ft. Worth, Tex., won the award last December over the rival bid of the Boeing Co. of Seattle, Wash.

The contract itself amounts only to $28 million, but the Defense Department estimates the cost ultimately will rise to $6.5 billion—not all of it going to General Dynamics. It calls for final design, development and production of 1,700 revolutionary type fighter-bomber planes for the Air Force and Navy.

$2.5 MILLION

The Senate Investigations subcommittee, of which McClellan is chairman, is investigating whether favoritism was involved in the awarding of the contract. The hearings are closed, but censored transcripts of the proceedings are being made public.

Documents placed in evidence before the subcommittee Wednesday traced four instances in which military valuation boards had held that Boeing had submitted a better and cheaper design. But the boards were overruled by civilian authority "at the secretary level" in the Pentagon.

Robert E. Dunne, a subcommittee staff lawyer, and Air Force Col. Charles A. Gayle testified that after the third reversal of the valuation groups, the Pentagon gave $2.5 million apiece to Boeng and General Dynamics to finance reworking of their rival designs, and also authorizied previously forbidden guidance to both bidders.

Rights Highlights

WASHINGTON (AP)—Here are textual highlights of President Kennedy's special message to Congress today on civil rights:

Equality before the law has not always meant equal treatment and opportunity. And the harmful, wasteful and wrongful results of racial discrimination and segregation still appear in virtually every aspect of national life, in virtually every part of the nation.

Race discrimination hampers our economic growth by preventing the maximum development and utilization of our manpower. It hampers our world leadership by contradicting at home the message we preach abroad. It mars the atmosphere of a united and classless society in which this nation rose to greatness. It increases the costs of public welfare, crime, delinquency and disorder. Above all, it is wrong.

The cruel disease of discrimination knows no sectional or state boundaries. The continuing attack on this problem must be equally broad. It must be both private and public—it must be conducted at national, state and local levels—and it must include both legislative and executive action.

The right to vote in a free American election is the most powerful and precious right in the world—and it must not be denied on the grounds of race or color. It is a potent key to achieving other rights of citizenship.

The shameful violence which accompanied but did not prevent the end of segregation at the University of Mississippi was an exception. State supported universities in Georgia and South Carolina met this test in recent years with calm and maturity, as did the state supported universities of Virginia, North Carolina, Florida, Texas, Louisiana, Tennessee, Arkansas and Kentucky in earlier years. In addition, progress toward the desegregation of education at all levels has made other notable and peaceful strides."

Mutilated Body Found In Congo

ELISABETHVILLE, the Congo (AP)—The mutilated body of a Katanga policeman and his seriously injured companion were found in a ditch early today near a Congolese army barracks.

A Katangan judicial inquiry determined that the two policemen were returning home Wednesday night from duty when Congolese soldiers attacked them.

The injured man was slashed and had a bayonet wound through his stomach.

The night before, Katangan police and Congolese soldiers killed a Katangan soldier resisting arrest. Later in the night Katanga police ambushed a detachment of Congolese soldiers and two soldiers and a policeman were reported killed.

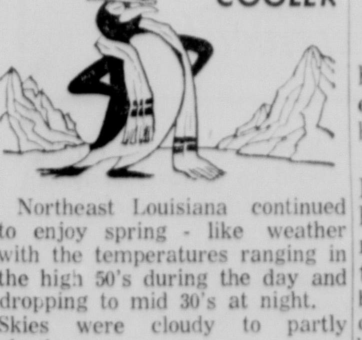
Acting Katanga President Evariste Kimba told a news conference the soldiers of the central Congolese army were causing mounting tension in the city's African townships.

"It is boiling over—the people just have had enough," he declared.

Now You Know

The practice of adding an extra day to every fourth year (Leap Year) was originated by the astronomers of Julius Caesar in 46 B.C., according to the Encyclopedia Britannica. They determined that since the solar year's length was 365 days and six hours, the extra hours should be added up into a full day every fourth year.

COOLER



Northeast Louisiana continued to enjoy spring - like weather with the temperatures ranging in the high 50's during the day and dropping to mid 30's at night. Skies were cloudy to partly cloudy.

Widely scattered showers were predicted for later today and Friday, but otherwise the outlook was pretty much the same as during the past few days.

The highest expected today was from 64 to 68. Tonight the mercury may drop to 34 to 38 degrees.

Southerly winds from 10 to 20 miles an hour may change during the evening, becoming northerly.

Battered Body Of Girl Found

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn. (AP)—The battered body of a girl was found today in Minnehaha Park, in South Minneapolis.

Detective Inspector Calvin Hawkinson said the girl apparently was beaten to death.

The victim was tentatively identified as Mary Bell, 15, who has been missing from a babysitting job Wednesday night.

Einar Nelson, 45, a nearby resident, found the body while walking his dog along a footpath.

Police said footprints in the snow indicated the girl was accompanied by at least one person and that she attempted to flee.

TRAPPED 32 HOURS

Woman Survives Ordeal In Well

SANGER, Calif. (AP) — A rancher's wife who held out tenaciously for 32 grueling hours while trapped deep in waters of a caved-in well, was praised today by her rescuer as a remarkable woman."

"After we got her out," said constable Hurshel Pigg, 'I asked her if she had worried any.' She's a remarkable woman. She told me her husband (away buying poultry) would be home in one more day and she could have held out til then."

Mrs. Arthur Hiscock, 45, left her house Tuesday morning to turn off the motor to a pump before going to work at a seed company.

Earth over a well she didn't know was there collapsed, plunging her into cold water. A ledge was formed by the cavein. She dug her arms into it and held on. She looked up. The well's rim was 20 feet above her.

"My deputy, Val Valles and I, drove out the next day when the sheriff's office reported she was still missing," Pigg said.

"Her car was in the yard. Three Siamese cats were raising a ruckus because they were hungry. I heard what sounded like a sheep bleating. When I got out to a shed, I realized it was a woman whose voice was hoarse from calling.

"When I found her, I grabbed a piece of quarter-inch cable, attached a board to it and lowered it so she could rest her arms. Then we found a rope and had her tie it around her body under her arms, so if she lost consciousness she wouldn't drown.

Age-Old Battle Still Exists On India's Frontier

By HENRY S. BRADSHER

TOWANG, India (AP)—A battle persists in India's North East Frontier Agency, though the Red Chinese invaders have withdrawn and the Indian troops they routed have never returned.

It's the age-old battle of a simple, pastoral people to wrest an existence from grain fields and herds in the high Himalayas.

In miniature it's the pounding of grease from wet raw wool by a pigtailed Monpa woman squatting beside a white stone fountain in this 350-year-old Buddhist monastery town.

Or the struggle of families down the mountainside toward the Towang River, thousands of feet below, to live on the harvests of barley and millet from terraced fields and provide through icy winters for their pigs and chickens and shaggy yak.

In the past India's government has kept most outsiders from the 31,438 square miles of the North East Frontier to allow its 336,000 people to progress into the modern world in an unhurried way that would preserve their traditional values.

This "philosophy of NEFA," like the Indian defense policy that proved inadequate, is now being questioned.

INDIA BUILDS

If and when India builds up a military shield around the territory, it may institute changes to speed up the process of modernization.

Some of these tribesmen fled south when Red China sent its brigades across the crest of the Himalayas last fall to enforce its claim to thousands of square miles of disputed frontier territory.

But most were scarcely touched by the ebb and flow of lowland soldiers who, invader and defender alike, panted for breath in the thin, cold air. Towang is two miles high.

Indian civilian administrators and police are back.

Militarily the agency area is a no-man's-land.

Perhaps a hundred miles separates the opposing armies.

The Chinese are presumed to be camped on the Tibetan side of the McMahon Line, the frontier 12 miles north of Towang.

The battered Indian army is rebuilding in the area of Tezpur, a city in the flatlands of Assam State 90 miles southeast of Towang. Prime Minister Nehru has decided against returning his troops to the vacated territory at this time, feeling it might provoke another armed clash.

In Texpur, a city which the Chinese menaced but never reached, open-front shops are busy and government offices bustle with activity.

Tezpur has recovered from immediate effects of its moment of panic last November when thousands fled south across the Bragmaputra River.

However, the people are apprehensive about the possibility of another Chinese attack. They talk in terms of when it may come, rather than if it will.

Beef, Pork Prices Continue Lower

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Protein is offered in a host of attractive forms—both meat and Lenton non-meat—at the nation's supermarkets this weekend.

Beef and pork prices continue low or lower, with heavy late winter livestock marketing. There also are several poultry attractions.

Eggs took a drop in most markets, fresh and canned seafood items are plentiful and cottage cheese, other cheeses and dairy products in general are economy-priced.

Among beef offerings, roasts are strongly featured. A sampling of some price tags at a national chain includes rib roasts at 69 cents a pound, round roasts 85 and rump roasts 89.

Both cured and fresh pork items are economically priced.

Poultry features include turkey, in the Midwest especially; chicken fryers, particularly in the Southeast, and roasting chickens.

Fresh vegetable offerings include cabbage, radishes, tomatoes, celery, onions and potatoes. Iceberg lettuce has come down in price at the same time quali[ty] has risen.

Fruit buys continue to be [ba]nanas, apples, pears and cann[ed] cherries. Also, citrus prices ar[e] slipping downward, with orange[s,] lemons and grapefruit becomi[ng] more attractive.

Phasing Out Process Reduces Prison Number

ALCATRAZ, Calif. (AP)—"The Rock" was down to 64 convicts today.

Only a year ago, the island prison near San Francisco's Golden Gate housed 260. In its time, it has held some of the nation's toughest cons—Al Capone, Alvin (Creepy) Karpis and Basil (The Owl) Banghart.

Now it's being phased out. Salt air, wind and time are wearing away Alcatraz, a prison of one sort of another since 1858. It's too costly to restore.

Among 38 cons moved off the rock Tuesday was Mickey Cohen, Los Angeles racketeer doing time for income tax evasion. They sent him to Atlanta.

The prison is expected to be empty by July 1.

"We'll certify the prison as surplus as soon as the prisoners are removed," said a spokesman for the Bureau of Prisons in Washington. The bureau is getting suggestions on what to do with it.

"I suppose it would be sort of a sightseeing place," a bureau spokesman conjectured.

"Some people wanted to make a restaurant out of it."

Catch To Story

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — The only catch in an Alabama man's claim for unemployment compensation, the FBI said, was that he wasn't available for work. William L. 30 YEARS AGO IN GERMANY

Fire That Made Hitler Occurred

EDITOR'S NOTE — Thirty years ago today, the Reichstag building in Berlin went up in flames, setting off a chain of Nazi crimes against the world. On hand was a veteran AP correspondent who is now chief editor of The Associated Press German language services in Europe. This is his story.

By RUDOLF E. JOSTEN

BERLIN (AP)—It was a fantastic sight. The huge glass dome of the Reichstag building was aglow.

There was a sudden explosion and the glass cupola burst into fragments. Flames shot into the wintry sky. Sixty fire engines raced to the blaze. Hundreds of police and brown-shirted Nazi storm troopers encircled the area.

The time: about 10 p.m.—Feb. 27, 1933.

History books mark this as the incident the Nazis used to unleash their reign of terror that led finally to millions of dead in World War II.

Since that date, no German Parliament has sat in the Reichstag building. The Nazis used another building.

War wrought further damage. The old Reichstag has become a symbol of the cold war which divides Germany, prevents the formation of an all-German Parliament and keeps Berlin from regaining its status as capital of Germany.

Today, the Reichstag stands within yards of the Berlin wall built by the Communists who now occupy half the old capital and half of Germany.

That night the storm troopers refused to let me through although I showed my press pass. "I'm sure they set fire to it themselves," said a voice behind me as tens of thousands gathered to watch the blaze.

Black limousines drove up. I saw Adolf Hitler, propaganda chief Joseph Goebbels and Hermann Goering.

I struggled through the crowds back to the office to tell the world. As we worked all night, reports kept coming in that all leading Communists had been arrested.

As I walked home at dawn, police were swarming over the offices of the Socialist newspaper, Vorwaerts. I knew then the Nazis meant to weed out all opposition-no matter by what means.

Four weeks earlier Hitler had been appointed chancellor by the aging Reichs president, Field Marshal Paul von Beneckendorf und Hindenburg.

The Nazis were not yet firmly established. In the elections in November 1932, they had lost two million votes. Their seats in the Reichstag had been cut from 230 to 196; the Communists were the biggest gainers.

With the next general election just one week away, the fire could not have been timed better for the Nazis. Hitler called it the signal for a nationwide Red uprising. Hundreds of Communists were thrown into jail, many beaten to death or shot.

Marinus van der Lubbe, a 24-year-old Dutch worker and independent Communist, was arrested inside the burning Reichstag. He told police he had no helpers in setting the fire. Within days, Ernst Torgler, parliamentary leader of the Communist party, and three Bulgarian Communists were arrested and charged with plotting the fire.

Van der Lubbe was sentenced to death by guillotining. Torgler and the three Bulgarians were acquitted for lack of evidence—courts had not yet been completely Nazified.

Scores of books have been written about the fire. Some contend that Van der Lubbe was a Nazi stooge.

Ex-Col. Gen. Franz Halder, former German army chief of staff, said after the war he heard Goering boast of having laid the fire.

Three years ago, Fritz Tobias, a German amateur historian who interrogated all survivors, theorized in a widely discussed book that Van der Lubbe acted alone and was a latter-day Guy Fawkes who wanted to alert the world to the Nazi danger.

While the Nazis blamed Communists for the fire, most historians believe the Nazis started it. I am convinced the fire was laid by the Nazis.

All the principals are dead. Dr. Ernst Oberfohren, alleged to have first exposed the Nazis' role in the fire, was found dead at his desk two months later.

George Bell, a Munich intelligence agent supposed to have known of ties between Van der Lubbe and the Nazis, was found dead in 1933 near the Austrian town of Kufstein.

Count Wolf Helldorf, the leading storm trooper in Berlin, was hanged as an anti-Hitler conspirator in 1944.

Goering, who committed suicide in the Nuernberg war crimes prison in 1946, insisted in his death cell that he had nothing to do with the fire.

Torgler, the former Communist leader who survived Nazi prisons, died last month. He said he was convinced Van der Lubbe was the sole arsonist.

One week after the fire, the Nazis polled 52 per cent of the popular vote in a general election. The Nazis were on their way to their "1,000-year Reich" which collapsed in the ruins of war in a little more than a decade.

For several years, a few workmen have slowly been restoring the Reichstag's bomb-pocked and shell-scarred exterior. The West German Parliament in Bonn ordered the work.

They work without much enthusiasm. As they climb the walls of the old building, they peer down on the concrete and barbed wire of the wall. They see police patrolling night and day to keep West and East Berliners apart.

"What's the use?" asked one old construction worker. "Germany will never be reunited, the Reichstag will never meet again."

State Water Big Question With Industry

By JAMES MCLEAN

BATON ROUGE (AP) — It's water, not oil or gas resources, just plain, clean water that draws many inquiries from industries looking over Louisiana as a suitable home.

In this state there are 3,346 square miles of inland water.

And water once was a seasonal plague in Louisiana, before the days the levees buttoned up the mighty Mississippi.

The state today is rated one of the lowest and most level regions in the nation. So low, many Louisiana streams are higher than their flood plains.

This was caused by the streams building up ridges of silt between which they flow.

Water quality in Louisiana has been receiving increasing attention, particularly since many other states are beginning to grow uneasy about the strength of their water supplies.

The question of water quality is receiving special attention now. For instance, Richard T. Gregg, writing in the current "Louisiana Conservationist," said the state division of water pollution control now has the use of a mobile laboratory, provided by the U.S. Public Health Service.

"It is expected that this trailer will play a significant part in the water quality program of Louisiana," he said. It is located now in the New Orleans area, where it is being used in connection with work in the lower Mississippi River and surrounding waterbodies.

The laboratory is available, however, for on-the-spot use in all parts of the state.

Industrial inquiries frequently have touched the particular quality of water in some stream.

In a related field, the Toledo Bend dam on the Sabine River, in northwestern Louisiana, eventually will give this state one of the largest man-made water reservoirs in the south.

Path Of Negotiations

The truth will out, as the old adage has it, but sometimes it takes a while for it to bubble to the surface. Last fall, when Soviet Premier Khrushchev offered to remove his "offensive" missiles from Cuba if President Kennedy would agree to remove fixed missile bases from Turkey, the U. S. public was led to believe that we had turned the Russians down.

The setting was perfect for a bold stand against the Soviet Union. United States warships and airplanes had set up a blockade around Cuba. Russia had nothing standing against us in the Mediterranean area. We had issued what appeared to be an ultimatum against Castro and Khrushchev with no promise of similar action on our part anywhere on the globe.

But this month, the U.S. Defense Department announced that Polaris submarine - based missiles would replace the land-based weapons in Turkey. The announcement was made without any fanfare as though one type weapon was being replaced with another.

What happened in the meantime? The best foreign channel to such maneuvers is the North Atlantic Treaty Organization in Paris. And some observes believe that this was the source of Turkey's leak to French President De Gaulle concerning the future of Jupiter missiles from that middle eastern nation.

Khrushchev had placed the larger missiles in Cuba as a bargaining tool. They allowed him to name his blackmail price for the crisis solution—the removal of our missiles from areas in the Mediterranean area, particularly Turkey. President Kennedy didn't find it necessary to announce he had accepted those terms. But by January, the visible, land-based Jupiter missiles were out of Turkey and invisible, under-sea based Polaris missiles were reportedly taking their place.

Just how far the ultimate removal of our missiles in the face of a Khrushchev "offer" went in influencing France's President DeGaulle to establish a separate defense for Europe cannot be determined. But others in western Europe are beginning to view America's handling of the Cuban crisis as another Munich. This was the city in which 25 years ago Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain of Britain made a bid for "peace" by trying to play the role of a friend with Hitler.

The phrase "keep the way open for negotiations" was in vogue at the time just as it is in the United Nations and in some U.S. quarters today.

So the question now arises: what has Khrushchev demanded in return for his removal of Russian troops now stationed in Cuba? As in the case of the Red missile story, the truth will eventually bubble to the surface.

Art Of Nuclear Testing

Admiral Lewis L. Strauss, who served as chairman of the Atomic Energy Commission, long ago warned of the futility of trying to negotiate a nuclear test ban treaty with Russia.

There is talk coming from Geneva now that a major "breakthrough" has occurred with Khrushchev offering to open Russia to internation inspection—on certain limited conditions.

His terms include the setting up of three automatic detecting devices in fixed positions within the Soviet Union. Entry by non-Soviets was to be permitted only on three occasions annually, with inspectors shuttled to the locations in Soviet planes with screened windows.

This recalls the unchanging attitude the Russians have held since czarist days. Outsiders were then and are now viewed with a suspicion unknown in the rest of the world. During World War II, U.S. pilots who ferried vital aircraft and armaments to the Soviet Union were given the same screened window treatment.

Last week in Geneva, where negotiations have plodded along for years and years, the western powers announced they were ready to make more concessions if the Russians would open their borders for one inspection for every five unidentified earth tremors. Under this arrangement, the free nations might catch any number of earthquakes while numerous nuclear tests were conducted.

Admiral Strauss points out there is no such thing as a tamper-proof detection device. The allowing of Russian teams to set up the devices within Russia could hardly guarantee that they would function.

When the United States agreed to a voluntary ban on nuclear weapons testing back in 1958, Strauss predicted underground cheating and outright defiance of the agreement on the part of the Russians. This came to pass openly in the late summer of 1961.

Why should the administration believe the Soviet Union will live up to any agreement now?

Capital's Crime Increase

If Congress is embarrassed by the activities of Representative Adam Clayton Powell, though President Kennedy claims not to be, the federal government and the nation in general could afford to rise up in arms over the lawlessness in the national capital.

The city's metropolitan police chief, Robert V. Murray, has reported through Washington newspapers that crime in nearly every category has increased 17.4 per cent over January, 1962. This marked the seventh month in a row that the crime rate has increased in that city.

The January report of crimes in Washington, D. C., reads as follows: six criminal homicides, 14 cases of criminal assault, 273 robberies, 215 aggravated assaults, 580 housebreakings, 89 grand larcenies, and 262 auto thefts.

In a letter to his constituents, Representative Thomas G. Abernethy of Mississippi noted:

"Among Washington's 22,075 crimes last year (an increase of almost 7,000 in five years) were the stabbing of a congressman's secretary as she knelt alone and prayed in a Capitol Hill church. In the same neighborhood, another congressional secretary was mugged, thrown to the earth, beaten and robbed; a congresswoman escaped a hoodlum's attack but was robbed; and a marauder broke into a former congressman's home and left his wife with a broken arm. Two years ago, one of my own page boys was attacked and robbed within four blocks of the Capitol."

Abernethy maintains that police are hindered by Washington court decisions which make it easy for criminals to beat the rap.

The big race riot of last fall which occurred in the aftermath of a football victory for an all-white school over a team from a Negro school caused school administrators, city fathers, and other Capitol City officials to emerge from a stoic silence over Washington's racial problems.

As a result, future city championship contests were called off, leaving the nation's capital as the only city in the United States which cannot—for reasons of law and order—afford to stage such a playoff.

In the midst of this condition, government officials and their families are moving to nearby communities in Maryland and Virginia, rapidly restoring Washington, D. C., to a segregated status.

No civil rights suits have been filed, and no efforts to integrate Washington residential districts have been ordered. Representative Abernethy puts it this way:

"They are as quiet as can be down in the Department of Justice. In fact, most of the higher ups down there have fled to Virginia, too."

Do You Know This Man?

Williams Denounced As 'Racist' For Criticizing Powell

By DAVID LAWRENCE

Critics who point out a lack of responsibility on the part of some of the Negro leaders in America are often called "racists." Public - school teachers in Washington hesitate to discipline Negro students for fear of being called "racists." The latest to decry criticism and attribute it to racial prejudice is Representative Adam Clayton Powell, Jr., Democrat, chairman of the House Education and Labor committee, who has been elected to Congress ten times by the Negro population of the Harlem district of New York City.

WHEN SENATOR John J. Williams of Delaware, Republican, recently made a speech in the Senate charging that Mr. Powell was being shown favored treatment by the Administration and was not being compelled to pay up back taxes, the New York congressman replied with a denunciation of Mr. Williams as a man guilty of race prejudice. It happens that the Delaware senator has voted in support of most all of the Civil Rights legislation introduced in Congress since he has been in the Senate.

Now comes the New York "Times" to take Mr. Powell to task for his statement. The record of the "Times" as a long-time champion of the integration movement is well known.

The "Times" isn't being published in New York City because of the strike, but it continues to publish on the Pacific coast a 14-page edition, including an editorial page, every day. In the issue of last Saturday, the lead editorial was entitled, "Because he is a Negro?" it reads as follows:

"AFTER A soul - searching self-inquiry into why in the world he should be under criticism, Representative Adam Clayton Powell Jr. has come up with the complete answer: It is 'unequivocally' because he is a Negro.

"Nobody would be objecting to his long, outrageous record as a Congressional absentee; no one would have noticed his night-clubbing junkets to Europe; the presence of his wife on the Congressional payroll at over $13,000, while resident in Puerto Rico, would have been ignored, as would Powell's own desertion of responsibility as a House committee chairman in the midst of important hearings. All these possible explanations for displeasure by his colleagues and other critics including ourselves have no validity, Mr. Powell states. His only mistake is that he is not white.

"It is not unexpected that Mr. Powell has chosen such a convenient and demagogic refuge. Appeal to race and the drumming up of charges of bigotry have long been his political stock in trade. The fact is that a Negro in high office usually — rightly or wrongly — receives favored treatment, and is nearly exempt from criticism, in the press and elsewhere, unless his faults are so obvious that silence becomes intolerable. There is a general and laudable desire to see a Negro succeed when he has attained a position of public trust. Criticism is avoided for the very reason that it might be mistaken for prejudice. Now Mr. Powell has again raised the racial issue in a desperate gesture of self - defense.

"HE IS NOT alone in being criticized for junketing around the world on flimsy missions at the taxpayer's expense. He is not unique in being criticized for having a member of the family on the payroll — although it must be admitted that such employes usually have the good grace to stay on the mainland, at least.

"His philosophy of everybody-else - is - doing - it, why-shouldn't-I? is, we suppose, a commonplace reaction of the most commonplace of politicians. It is disappointing, however, to see Powell — a spiritual as well as a political leader — not setting a better example. The tragedy of the long Powell career in office is that he, unusually gifted with intelligence, talent and personality has chosen to be 'equal' with the least conscientious in Congress rather than the most.

"So, to vindicate himself and not be accused of 'running out' under attack, Powell said he has changed his mind and will not retire but instead will seek another term.

"This is really bad news, for New York and for Congress."

THERE ARE other implications in the episode besides the political aspects. Here's a man who is chairman of one of the top-ranking committees in Congress — the House committee on education and labor. Legislation in the field of labor is highly important these days, and so are the many bills designed to furnish Federal aid to the states for the benefit of educational institutions of all kinds. But Mr. Powell is frequently absent. Under the seniority system, he has been elected chairman and cannot be displaced except by a vote of his colleagues. They, however, are afraid to remove him because they, too, might be branded as having racial prejudices — a charge that could be intensified in local political campaigns.

PUBLIC OPINION alone can force a change. But leadership of such a movement would have to come from the highly respected Negro leaders in the country. They could not be charged with racial antagonisms. In fact, they would vindicate the judgment of those who, like this writer, have always contended that patriotism and dedication to the public interest are not confined in America to the members of any race or creed or religion.

Senator Kennedy's Anterooms Crowded With Supporters

By HOLMES ALEXANDER

You've always got hope for the statesman who is capable of getting off the chalk mark of previous alignment — so I hold a reserved rah - rah for Senator Ted Kennedy. He may not be entirely the keeper of his presidential brother's rubber hand stamp. He may be that, but more besides.

Senator Kennedy's anterooms, when I've been there, are the crowded vestibules of favoritism. Everybody and his in-laws are trying to get a nod from the man elected to do "more for Massachusetts.' From what I've read about the outer chambers of royal and temporal benefactors, from princes to precinct leaders, this is the normal condition.

ONCE IN an interim job between military service and civilian employment, I undertook to peddle insurance policies and was shy about approaching wealthy friends: "You won't sell much," a realist told me, "to poverty-stricken enemies.' So it is with all forms of solicitation. Theres no percentage in waiting around the door of a man unable to give. So why hold it against Kennedy that petitioners haunt the quarters of the Bay State's junior Senator? If he puts his hand in his pocket, it needn't come out empty.

IN CONSCIENCE, somebody ought to report that Ted Kennedy is apparently trying to become something beyond a mere dispenser of political pork and an automatic yeasayer on Administrative measures. He seems to be preparing for a legitimate role as Senator from Massachusetts. Criticism of his candidacy dealt with his unproved capacity, his inexperience at the age of thirty and his coattail affinity with the royal family. It appears that Senator Kennedy is striving to surmount these allegations by bending over an old New England work appliance — the grindstone. To wit:

Senator Saltonstall (R., Mass.) tells me that, having escorted two Kennedys up the aisle, he broached the subject of joint action on matters pertaining strictly to Massachusetts. The result was that Senator Kennedy sent a pair of staffers to Saltonstalls office where a system of two - name press releases on non - partisan local matters has been worked out.

SENATOR Kennedy, I have learned, spends much study over another partnership project — the matter of deciding when to add his name to bills introduced by his colleagues. He has so far agreed to co-sponsor a mass transportation bill with Williams (D., N. J.) and a fish bill with Bartlett (D., Alaska). He is expected to go along on numerous measures that affect New England textiles and the like.

The new Senator has thus far avoided national publicity, easy for a Kennedy to get. He sees, in the main, only regional reporters. Having been publicized in pictures as a ski - jumper, bronc-buster, glad - hander and world-traveler, he has chosen the relatively quiet life of a Senate freshman.

ALL THIS may change, not for the better. Ted Kennedy may prove to be merely his brother's brother much as, at last session, Senator Ben Smith was the President's campus roommate, and little else.

But on the old American principle of holding a trial prior to pronouncing a verdict, I say we give Ted a spring try-out before tagging him as a second - string seatwarmer on the Senate team.

How To Keep Well

By DR. THEODORE R. VAN DELLEN

DELIVERY

Some women become emotionally disturbed following the birth of their first child. The adjustments needed in social and family relationships, along with the unaccustomed demands of infant care, are too much for her. Depression, anxiety, and fatigue are the usual manifestations.

But most women have enough emotional stability, motivation, and confidence to care for the newborn adequately. Sympathetic understanding and reassurance by husband and family also help.

Ultimately, the postpartum blues disappear and the young mother takes over her responsibilities as tho nothing had happened. A few are not so fortunate and go on to develop a more serious psychiatric disturbance. This often escapes detection until it has become well established. The condition is suspected when the woman becomes increasingly sleepless, irritable, restless, and depressed.

In time, she becomes more and more confused, suspicious of others, and overly concerned over trivial matters. Nothing she does is right and suggestions usually go unheeded. The last stage is a full-blown psychosis in which she becomes extremely depressed, riddled with fears and suspicions; delusions and hallucinations may ensue. Institutional care may be needed to bring her back to reality.

An inherent weakness is responsible, particularly in young women who have been sheltered thru-out life and feel insecure and inadequate after the baby arrives. Others are too aggressive and outgoing to accept the responsibilities of motherhood and subconsciously resent the loss of their independence.

The poorly organized mother is another candidate for postpartum psychosis. She needs advice on the care of the baby, the number of hours she ought to work, and the necessity for outside activities. The husband ought to realize that he also is responsible for the child's care and should share this duty with his wife.

An ounces of prevention goes a long way. The cause of this type of mental illness is not known. But if allowed to grow worse, the mother is likely to be separated from the family for a long time while undergoing treatment.

ROUGH SPOTS

E. L. writes: Please tell me if anything can be come about brown, rough spots on face and body. I am 78.

REPLY

Nothing need be done unless the lesions become elevated or covered with crusts. They are easily removed when this occurs.

CHILD OF ADDICT

J. A. writes: Can an unborn child be affected by or born with an addiction to drugs if the father is an addict?

REPLY

No. On the other hand, the child may become an addict in years to come if he has the same emotional immaturity that plagues the father.

RARE IN WOMEN

Mrs. P. S. writes: Could a woman of 50 who never has smoked get Buerger's disease?

REPLY

Yes, but it is unusal. Buerger's is limited almost entirely to younger men who smoke heavily.

CHEST PANG

L. P. writes: Is breast pang the same as angina pectoris?

REPLY

Both are forms of chest pain but many physicians prefer to limit the term, angina pectoris, to pain of heart origin.

Kentucky Senator Opens Fire

By FULTON LEWIS, JR.

Kentucky's Senator Thruston Morton is angered by the policy of White House news management. In a brilliant address to the Georgia press Institute at Athens last week, Senator Morton told the assembled newsmen:

"Your profession and mine have a problem in common these days. We are becoming obsolete. News and legislation are being fully automated. There is a giant new machine that grinds out both commodities; grinds them out serves them up, ties a bib around your neck, spoon - feeds you, and even sends a doctor around to examine you if the diet happens to disagree with you.

"The newspaperman is expected to pass the package along to his readers. The legislator is expected to pass the package along to his constituents. The linotype machine and the legislative machine in this grand design, can both be replaced by rubber stamps."

THE MACHINE, needless to say, is the Executive Branch of government. And one of its chief operators is Arthur Sylvester, a former correspondent who once fought news management and now defends it.

News, says Sylvester, an Assistant Secretary of Defense, is a weapon in the hands of the government. And it "is an inherent government right, if necessary, to lie to save itself."

Sen. Morton pointed to a bit of news management that helped the Administration come off creditably in the November elections.

In late October, just a week or so before millions of Americans went pollward, Secretary of Labor Willard Wirtz released an official report on unemployment. It said that more than 4.5 million Americans were employed than at the start of the Administration. Unemployment, he continued, had been slashed by 2 million since the Republicans left town.

WITH ALL the precision of a military maneuver, Wirtz had helped save the Administration from political defeat. When the election had passed, however, the true figures were released.

Total employment had risen not 4.5 million, but 1.2 million, nothing more than par for the course in an expanding economy. Unemployment had been cut not 2 million, but 784,000, less than the President had promised during his successful campaign for election.

Things have changed in Washington, Sen. Morton insists. The people cannot be trusted. James McGregor Burns, the President's official biographer, calls Congress a "stumbling block to democracy." The President demands that committees of House and Senate be expanded to give him iron - fisted control over the Legislative branch. The Budget Director has told Congress that its members can't consider the budget properly because they "fragment it" by dividing it into receipts and expenditures. Only the President, he says, can properly view the budget.

The Administration operates on the thesis of Alvin Hansen, professor emeritus at Harvard, that "the marginal tax dollar has a much higher social utility than the marginal pay - envelope dollar. The former goes to schools; the latter into tail fins."

SIMPLE, isn't it, asks Senator Morton. Government is wise. Individuals are foolish.

And in this continuing battle, of the enlightened against the unenlightened, a controlled press is a weapon that must be used, in the words of Arthur Sylvester, because government has "an inherent right to save itself."

BIBLE DIGEST

"And be ye kind one, to another, tender - hearted, forgiving one another, even as God for Christ's sake hath forgiven you." Ephesians 4:32

He who fails to forgive has a poor memory.

My Answer

By BILLY GRAHAM

The radio dial on Sundays is filled with religious programs. Frankly, I get a little sick of it when I try to get a little soothing music, all I can hear is preaching. Does this bother you? D.B.

Sunday, for the Christian is a day for meditation and worship. The Commandment, "Remember the Sabbath day to keep it holy," has not been revoked. Is it possible that we are so intrenched in our secular appetites that we find the mention of God, if only one day a week, distasteful?

Personally, I hope the day will never come when there will be no preaching of the Gospel on the radio. I realize that some programs may be poorly produced, but they are pure in motive. The desire of most Gospel broadcasters is to help people to live better through faith in Christ.

Someone has said that the Gospel is for the purpose of comforting the afflicted and afflicting the comfortable. Maybe your customary 'soothing music' has made you too comfortable. If nothing else is to be found on the dial, listen to the Gospel once. It won't harm you — it may do you good.

VISITING SERVICE

Homemaking Will Be Taught

Ouachita Parish has been selected as one of six centers in Louisiana to offer a Visiting Homemaker Service training program.

Classes will start on next Monday, March 4 — the deadline for enrolling.

Mature women who successfully complete the five-weeks course will be certified as Visiting Homemakers, and will be assisted by the State Employment Service in obtaining work.

Mrs. Ann May will instruct classes, each Monday and Wednesday night from 7 to 9 at Ouachita Parish High school.

Persons nterested in becoming a certified Visiting Homemaker may contact the State Employment Service, 1801 Auburn Ave.

Officials explain that a Visiting Homemaker is a "professionally trained person who keeps the family together in time of a crisis. She performs duties such as light housekeepng, marketing, preparing meals including special diets for various illnesses, caring for the sick patient and his room, giving simple medication under a physician's suprvision and encouraging the aged person to help himself and serve as a cheerful companion."

They point out that there is "a demand for persons properly trained to care for the chronically ill and aged.

"This program will serve a two-fold purpose: it will enable such persons to remain in their own home rather than being hospitalized or institutionalized; and it also will provide employment for the older woman."

India's Democracy Is Flower That Could Perish Quickly

NEW DELHI (UPI) — Indian democracy is a rare, exotic hot-house flower which could perish overnight in the first hard frost.

Democracy's blooms are flourishing today, thanks to careful cultivation by the country's political leaders and the warmth of Prime Minister Jawaharlal Nehru's immense personal popularity and prestige.

But the plant has few strong roots in the stony soil of India's impoverished and illiterate masses. If the gardeners of the ruling congress party should lose interest in tending this delicate plant, democracy would quickly wither and die.

The Communist Chinese attack on Indian outposts last autumn sent a chilly draft through India. One of the frightened government's first reactions was to impose sweeping emergency regulations.

INCREASE LOCAL POWERS

The laws are virtually the same as those under which Great Britain kept Nehru in jail throughout World War II. They give local officials almost unlimited rights to arrest suspects and seize property.

Later regulations threatened government employes with prison sentences for disobeying orders or failing to report for work. Other rules warned newspaper publishers they could face stiff fines or printing stories which displeased the government.

The object of the new restrictions was to guard against sabotage and spying by Red China or local communists. The main WG sults so far have been the detention of some 3,000 Chinese residents of India in a special camp at Deoli in northwestern India, and the arrest of more than 300 Indian Communists by state government authorities. At least 100 Communists are still being held.

But others besides the Communists are afraid of the new laws. The Indian bureaucracy has generally avoided promiscuous use of its new powers, but there have been a few examples of their use against non-Communists.

Three members of the moderate opposition were arrested after distributing a pamphlet criticizing Nehru's conduct of the border clash with China. Months later they were still in jail, even though no charges had been filed against them.

Of the numerous newspapers which have received warnings from the government, almost all are right-wing publications which can be accused of opposing the ruling congress party, which do not sympathize with Red China.

These have been isolated incidents, to be sure. But Nehru and other Congress party leaders have warned that the emergency laws may remain in force for four or five years. Many Indian liberals wonder whether the Indian bureaucracy can resist a five-year temptation to make vigorous use of its new powers.

There seem to be three major threats to the democracy of India:

1. The Communists and the far left.

2.The neo-fascist extremists of the far right.

3. The ruling Congress party.

The Communists have a long way to go. Their strength is limited now primarily to the states of Kerala and West Bengal. They have lost the trust of the people since their Chinese comrades marched across the Himalayas into Indian territory last October. The Red Chinese attack caused a period of agonizing reappraisal on the part of the Indian Communists, and they have not yet regained their composure.

The Indian far right includes a number of parties, all of them calling for a revival of Hinduism, a strong centralized government, and the building of massive military strength. Most fanatic of this group is the Rashtriya Swayamsevak Sangh (RSS). This group goes in for Nazi-style uniforms and military drill. It wants to see an orthodox Hindu empire ruling the whole sub-continent.

The RSS was implicated in the murder of the revered Mahatma Gandhi. Liberal Indians believe this group, and other Hindu fanatics, would try to exploit any major internal crisis in order to seize power.

The third danger to India—the ruling Congress party and the bureaucracy—is an ironic one. It is the Congress party which can take full credit for keeping alive the delicate bud of democracy in this vast land, yet within the party lies a distinct threat to the continuation of democratic rule.

The Congress controls 80 per cent of the votes in the national parliament. It is the ruling party in every one of India's 16 states. Its leader, Nehru, is a national hero who can do no wrong.

The Congress party's huge majorities in every election make it legally possible for the Congress to amend the constitution at any time. It could easily install itself in absolute power and declare Nehru a dictator or king. It is to the party's credit that it has not done so.

But there is no guarantee that this immense power will always be used to promote democratic ideals. And, of course, the 73-year-old liberal minded prime minister will not live forever.

The Congress has already proven that it can move harshly when its power is threatened. In 1959, the central government seized power from the popularly elected state government of Kerala which, unfortunately, had cast its votes for Communist officials.

Today the Congress is pushing an amendment through parliament which is clearly aimed at the Dravida Munnetra Kazhagam (DMK), a political party which is threatening to win majority support in the state of Madras.

The DMK supports the eventual independence and union of Madras and three other states in southern India. The new amendmet would make this kind of demand a prison offense.

Nandan Kagal, writing in the respected times of India, said:

"For the union government to act as if the DMK poses a secessionist threat to the unity of India is to chase shadows. What it does pose is a threat to the Congress party's monopoly of power in Madras, which is not quite the same thing."

The nationwide Congress party machine is a potential danger to the free play of political forces in India, but at the same time the Congress is the most likely defender of the democratic system.

The men who rule the Congress party are veteran politicians. Thanks to their grip on the people's imagination, these leaders have rarely had to use violent or illegal means to gain, or retain, their power. Their strength lies in their ability to attract votes, and in a system of privilege and patronage which follows the typical pattern of political machines in most democratic countries.

When Nehru finally leaves the scene, it will be up to these masters of political infighting to create a new leadership through the system they know best—gaining votes in free elections. If they turn to other means, they will be playing a game at which the Communists and neo-fascists are the masters.

For this reason, if no other, the machine politicians of the Congress party may well be the real shield and hope of continued and expanding democracy in India.

GETS JOB AS LABORER

Cleared Airman, Wife Reconcile

OGDEN, Utah (AP)—Gerald M. Anderson, former Air Force man jailed 10 months for murder and then cleared, has taken two big steps toward resuming a normal life.

Anderson, 25, arrived here with his family three weeks ago after being reconciled with his wife in California. Tuesday, he started work as a laborer for a landscaping firm—his first job since being discharged from the Air Force.

Anderson was charged by civil and military authorities with slaying the wife and young son of a fellow airman at the Mountain Home Air Force Base in Idaho last April 10. The woman was raped.

Civil authorities released Anderson Nov. 26 after accepting the confession of another man, but Anderson was rearrested by the Air Force which kept him in custody until Jan. 29. After a military hearing, he was exonerated and honorably discharged.

Insurance Group Selects Allen 'Agent Of Year'

A Monroe insurance man, John H. Allen, was selected "Agent of the year" at the annual banquet Wednesday night of the Monroe Association of Life Underwriters.

Mayor W. L. Howard made the presentation to Allen, a general agent for Franklin Life Insurance Company, at the banquet which was held at 6:30 p.m. Wednesday in the Paragon Club.

A spokesman for the association said the annual award is based on a man's services to the association, to his fellow underwriters, to his clients, and to his church and community. The recipient is selected by the board of directors of the association.

Allen was presented with an attache case bearing his name, the award, and the date in gold lettering. He was selected from eight candidates.

Guest speaker for the occasion was Louie Throgmorton, vice president of the Republic National Life Insurance Co. of Dallas, Tex., who has been associated with the life insurance business for 35 to 40 years. Approximately 60 members from Monroe and the surrounding area were present for the banquet.

Allen, a life insurance agent for nine years, lives at 1704 N. 4th St., Monroe. He has held every office in the association, and is presently serving as the Association national committeeman.

10 days or so as three separate bills.

They fall into these classifications:

1. Education.

The main request here was that Congress authorize a program to provide federal know-how and money to push desegregation in public schools in communities which need and seek financial help.

2. Civil Rights Commission.

First set up in 1957, the commission goes out of business next November unless Congress acts. Kennedy asked that its life be extended at least four years. And he asked that Congress authorize it to expand into a national clearing house to provide information, advice and technical help to any public or private agency which wants them.

2. Elimination of parking meters will present a temptation to the motoring public to congest and crowd the present parking facilities for long periods of time, especially during Christmas and other holidays.

3. In the absence of parking meters, the workers with limited time for paying their bills will in many instances be delayed, thereby creating a burden on the merchants.

Council members said today that they did not think they could take legal action on the meters, even if they met today prior to the meeting tonight.

They pointed out that a special meeting must be called 24-hours ahead of time.

DEAR ABBY

Marriage Is Not For Children In School

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: I think the parent-planned marriages like they had in the old country years ago should become a custom in this country. Why not let the girls marry at 16 and finish their education in an all-married-girls' high school? It would save a lot of wear and tear on parents who have a tough time keeping their daughters in line.

MRS.C.

DEAR MRS. C.: Marriage is for mature people — not children. Granted, some mature people make a poor choice, but the key to keeping daughters in line is not wedlock. When a girl marries she should be mature enough to make a home for her husband and to rear any children that follow. Mixing school books with milk bottles and bills is for the birds.

DEAR ABBY: Just exactly what is an engagement ring supposed to mean, and how long should an engagement last? I got an engagement ring two years ago Christmas and so far my boy friend has made no plans for our future. When I ask him to help me set a wedding date, he finds a hundred excuses. The main one is that he is in debt. It is no wonder, the way he spends money before he gets it. Should I give him his ring back or wait some more? I am 22 and he is 24.

LONG ENGAGEMENT

DEAR LONG: Before you make that decision, collar your boy friend and ask him what his plans for the future are. If he has none — and doesn't want to make any — it means he is not seriously considering marriage. In which case, return his ring.

DEAR ABBY: Will you please explain why a girl has to accept a date with the first boy who asks her for a special occasion — or else stay home? The creepiest boys get wise to this and ask unreasonably early. I realize a girl can't refuse on the grounds that she hopes someone more desirable will ask her. But if she tells the early caller that she "might be out of town" and then shows up with a date, she makes the early caller mad at her. It seems there should be a way out for a girl.

ONE GIRL'S MOTHER

DEAR MOTHER: If a girl doesn't care to accept a date with a fellow (no matter when he calls her), she should simply say, "I'm sorry. I'm busy." (She could be "busy" at home, cleaning dresser drawers, etc.) The less fibbing a girl does, the better.

What's on your mind? For a personal reply, send a self-addressed, stamped envelope to Abby, in care of News Star.

111th Anniversary Of Phi Mu's Origin To Be Observed At Saturday Luncheon

The 111th anniversary of the founding of Phi Mu Fraternity will be celebrated by Phi Mu alumnae and the Northeast Louisiana State College chapter at a luncheon Saturday at 1 p.m. at the Paragon Supper Club.

Mrs. Lee Herron, local Founders' Day committee chairman, will be assisted by Mrs. Henry Hinkle, regional director, and Mrs. Clifton Flinn.

Eleanor Harmon of the collegiate chapter is in charge of the program.

A member of the National Panhellenic Conference, Phi Mu was founded March 4, 1852 at Wesleyan College, Macon, Ga., and now has eighty - five collegiate chapters, 176 alumnae chapters and clubs and over 38,000 members.

During the traditional service honoring principles of scholarship and service to others established by the founders, pennies will be contributed to the Alpha Memorial Fund for each year of the fraternity. The fund, established in 1913, provides scholarship loans and grants to needy and worthy college students.

Through the Phi Mu Foundation additional scholarships are made available each year, including a $1,000 international study grant to a foreign student for graduate work in this country. The current year's recipient is Miss Damiana Bartuz from Italy who is completing her doctorate in music at Indiana University.

Northeast's Alpha Rho chapter contributes to the fraternity's national education program as well as its philanthropy, "Service to Children," which includes the donation and operation of over 125 toy carts in children's hospitals and other hospitals throughout the country and abroad.

Locally, the chapter's social service program is highlighted by a toy cart party at Christmas. Toys which members exchange and play with at the party are taken the next day to Conway Memorial Hospital for the youngsters' toy cart, which was built by the collegiate chapter. The group also takes toilet articles to teen-age girls at the Baptist Children's Home and comic books to local Red Cross headquarters for distribution to children in the area.

Henderson Home Scene Of Meeting

Mrs. W. S. Nash became a new member of the Claiborne Home Demonstration Club when it met for February in the home of Mrs. T. D. Henderson with Mrs. J. K. Kennedy co-hostess.

The business session was conducted by the president, Mrs. David Bryan, who also gave the thought for the day. She called on Mrs. W. J. Dunn for a report on the January meeting of the Ouachita Home Demonstration Council. Mrs. Wiley E. Roach Jr. was elected club treasurer.

Mrs. Charles Glover, vice-president, called on family life leader and health and safety leader for report. Nutrition leaders, Mrs. Henderson and Mrs. Kennedy, gave a demonstration on "Foods from the Freezer," and after a recreation period led by Mrs. Monk Salley, foods prepared were served to the following members: Mrs. Ray Calloway, Mrs. Roach, Mrs. Dunn, Mrs. H. O. Eley, Mrs. Salley, Mrs. Joe Wellerman, Mrs. R. Frantom, Mrs. Jasper Jones, Mrs. E. C. Gaskins, Mrs. Glover, Mrs. Sue Shatzer, Mrs. David Bryan, Mrs. W. S. Nash, Mrs. L. M. Payne, Mrs. Henderson and Mrs. Kennedy. Mrs. L.E. McCurry was a guest.

The March meeting will be with Mrs. C. A. Nenney, Farmerville Road.

Elected to the nominating committee were Mrs. Joel Moore, chairman, Mrs. D. M. Griffith Sr., Wood Sers, Mrs. Garlington and Mrs. T. C. Cockerham.

Door prize was won by Mrs. C. H. Jordan and room prize by Mrs. Culpepper's first grade. Refreshments were served under the direction of Mrs. White's fourth grade.

Be sure to cook dried beans at a simmering temperature so they will stay whole. If the beans do not boil, you should be able to cook a pound of the beans (a little over two cups) in 1½ quarts of water.

Why Grow Old

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

Thighs cause many feminine sighs. Many women have a lovely figure except for a bulge at the thighline. As I have said before, this happens because of muscle slump and fat dump.

Here is an exercise for this figure defect:

Lie on your back with your arms resting on the floor, extending out from your shoulders, palms down. Lift your legs half way up (knees stiff). Separate your legs. Bring them together. Lower them to the floor. Continue.

Of course, the glandular setup which we inherited influences the distribution of our weight. Some women are prone to large hips, others to fat over the abdomen and others to this bulge at the thigh.

Some women do not have a bulge, but have large thighs. I think the following exercise is very good for this defect and for leg contour in general (It also gives the abdominal muscles a workout in a mild way.):

Sit on the floor with your legs straight. Place your hands on the floor, slightly behind you, in a comfortable position. Bend your left knee up toward your abdomen. As you straighten your left leg, bend your right knee. As you straighten your right leg, bend your left knee and so on. As one leg bends, the other straightens. Do this vigorously and point the toe as the leg straightens.

Here is a hint for those of you who sit at a desk for long periods of time. If you sit forward in your chair in a slumping position, with your knees slightly separated, you are much more apt to develop what is often called "The Office Broadside."

Try this and notice the difference:

Sit with your hips against the back of the chair. Straighten your spine. Periodically lift your heels from the floor for a moment. This is spendid for the thighline as well as your circulation.

If you would like to have my exercises for the hips and the thighs, send a stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request for leaflets No. 3 and 4 to Josephine Lowman in care of this newspaper.

Opening leads ♥ 4

It is a well known fact in duplicate circles that the majority of 'big' boards result from the opponents' mistakes. Today's hand from the recent El Dorado Sectional points this up.

We would not pass the South hand originally, but it is admittedly close. A number of South players opened the hand with 1 Club, perhaps the best bid, but then were afraid to rebid the spades — thereby, of course, completely defeating the purpose of opening this kind of hand with 1 club. Anyway, North balanced out the 2 heart bid and South wound up in 3 spades (what would have happened to 3 heart doubled is quite a story, too).

South properly assumed from the opening lead that two of the top honors lay with East, and put in the seven of hearts, ruffing the king. A spade to the jack was next, then the king and ace of trumps, East discarding a small club. South led the six of clubs, West went up with the ace and returned a heart. The ten forced the ace and South ruffed. He now had no option but to play off the K Q of clubs. When East's nine dropped, South ran the suit. The last club squeezed West who had to come down to Q of hearts and K 9 of diamonds. Declarer threw the jack of hearts from dummy, finessed with jack of diamonds, dropped the king with the ace and then took the last trick with the queen of diamonds for a total of twelve tricks.

East's discard of a small club on the third spade made a difference of three tricks. Just what he expected to do with the five of hearts is unknown. However, Purist, the declarer, was understandably enthusiastic about East's play.

Membership Pin Awarded Mr. Wilson

C. O. Wilson, principal of Millsaps school, was awarded the honorary life membership pin by the Ouachita Parish P-TA Council at the February meeting at Logtown.

Refreshments in keeping with the season of George Washington's birthday were served by the hostess to the members present, Mrs. S. Petrus, Mrs. William Wilkerson, Mrs. T. J. Conger, Mrs. Walter Knapp, Mrs. Earl Brimberry, Mrs. W. O. Webb, Mrs. Paul Ozement, Mrs. L. D. Ritter, Mrs. Everett Burgoyne, Mrs. Leon Sutton and guest, Mrs. I. C. The hostess served refreshments to the following members: Mrs. H. F. Dossett, Mrs. W. K. Easley, Mrs. J. W. Holtzclaw, Mrs. W. G. Kelly, Mrs. P. L. Pace, Mrs. Lynn Roberts, Mrs. W. B. Hollingsworth and guests - Mrs. Clark, Mrs. Lathan Williams, and Mrs. Elizabeth Dorris.

DRUGS IN PREGNANCY

CHICAGO (UPI) — Pregnant women should not take any drug in the first three months unless it is essential to the preservation of the mother's health, a San Francisco obstetrician said here.

"We do not know and we may never learn how many drugs currently in use may affect embryonic development in a small percentage of cases," said Dr. Ernest W. Page at the annual meeting of the American Academy of Pediatrics.

Money Dealings Abroad Decline

By SAM DAWSON

NEW YORK ((AP) — United States money transactions with the rest of the world have taken a turn for the worse in recent months. But there's been nothing that could be called a new raid on its gold reserves. Times have changed.

And the price of the metal in world markets has remained stable—even below the official price at which the U.S. Treasury sells, $35.0875 an ounce.

An increase in the deficit of payments in the final months of 1962 is a cause of worry to the Washington money managers and to those trying to boost U.S. exports higher.

But the stability of gold and the evident strength of the dollar in world financial markets is cause of considerable satisfaction.

Much of the thanks goes to the group of central bankers, American and foreigners, who have rigged up a device to halt the raids that in the past unsettled one or another currency and for a brief period put the American dollar under strain to the surprise of most Americans who thought it as good as gold.

The group acts quietly. In fact, American money managers have never officially said the United States was taking part. But the success of this quiet pooling of international financial resources to protect currencies against the stress of temporary ups and downs of trade and financial balances shows plainly in the stable gold market as reported daily from London. This week prices have been below $35.08 an ounce, making any buying of U.S. government gold unprofitable.

This very real, if officially unannounced, international gold pool keeps the London free market stable simply by buying when the price is below the official U.S. Treasury figure. When the price goes above that figure the pool can step in and sell.

This swells the amount of gold available, and as the supply goes up the demand is met and the price returns to the desired level.

The pool doesn't pretend it can protect the dollar forever if the balance of payments deficit keeps mounting. That is why the United States has taken many measures to boost the total of U.S. exports on one hand and to discourage the outflow of dollars on the other. The measures have fallen short of their goal.

The deficit last year was $2.2 billion—that many more dollars leaving this shore to pay for imports, foreign aid, military aid overseas, and investments there than came back for exports and other dollar winners. The 1962 deficit was an improvement over the $2.4 billion the previous year and the $4 billion one of 1960.

Brain Power Keeps Charyk Moving Up

WASHINGTON (AP) — Dr. Joseph V. Charyk is a 42-year-old space-missile scientist whose brain power won him a high position with the Eisenhower administration and still higher honors from President Kennedy.

The Canadian-born scientist will be the first president of the Communications Satellite Corp.

This will boost Charyk's salary from the $20,000 a year he makes as undersecretary of the Air Force to about $100,000 a year.

Charyk (pronounced char-ik) came to the government more than four years ago as chief scientist of the Air Force.

To take that post, he was granted a year's leave of absence from the general managership of a private space technology outfit. He never went back to Aeronutronic Systems Inc., in California.

Instead, President Dwight D. Eisenhower promoted him to assistant secretary of the Air Forc in charge of development in June 1959 and six months later elevated him once again to undersecretary, the second ranking civilian in the Air Force.

When the Kennedy administration took charge in January 1961, the tall, slim scientist was kept aboard.

Like many Pentagon officials under Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara, Charyk works long hours, well beyond the normal work day.

Charyk, the son of a Polish-born railroad man, grew up in Canmore, Alberta, where he was born Sept. 9, 1920.

After graduating from the University of Alberta, he went on to get his master of science and then his Ph.D. from the California Institute of Technology.

While studying for his doctorate Charyk met and married Edwina Rhodes in 1945. They now have four children.

Judge Pays Fare Of Vagrant To Atlantic City

MOUNT HOLLY, N.J. (AP) — Samuel L. Poole, who put the charitable instincts of a judge to a severe test, has been removed from this jurisdiction.

Municipal Court Judge Wilbur S. Lippincott dug into his own pocket and gave Poole bus fare to his home town of Atlantic City, 70 miles from here. Police made sure Wednesday that Poole got on the bus.

Poole, 51, appeared before Lippincott on Feb. 8 for the second time on a vagrancy charge. Poole had just completed a 20-day jail term for vagrancy and he asked to be returned to his "warm cell." Lippincott obliged.

Let out last week, Poole was picked up a third time for vagrancy and appeared before Lippincott Tuesday night. This time Lippincott declined further "free public lodging." The judge instead produced a $5-dollar bill, which he turned over to Poole saying it was for a "one way bus ticket back to Atlantic City."

Our Sincere and Honest Reason for This Sale

Due to Circumstances BEYOND CONTROL I have found it Necessary to terminate my Wholesale & Retail Appliance Businesses. All Appliance stocks, including RCA-Whirlpool, have been Consolidated from all Louisiana and Arkansas outlets and warehouses which have been closed. Much of this is still in the original crates. Rather than sell this merchandise in Bulk to other dealers, it was decided to offer it to the General Public . . . well over $200,000 worth of Nationally Advertised Home Appliances at our cost and far below. While I realize that, in Liquidating these stocks in this manner, a Severe Financal Sacrifice MUST BE MADE, other Business Interests are so urgent they absolutely require my undivided attention and efforts . . . IMMEDIATELY! I wish to make it clear to all my friends and customers that this TOTAL LIQUIDATION concerns ONLY my Appliance Business, and will have no effect on my other business interests.

NICHOLLS FRIDAY

Redskin Golfers Bill 11 Matches

Northeast Louisiana State's golf team, opening its season with a home match against Nicholls here Friday afternoon, will engage in 11 meets this spring, according to the schedule announced today by athletic director Jack Rowan and coach Bob DeMoss.

A total of eight dual matches are set for the Indian golfers, plus competition in the McNeese Invitational, LSU Invitational and Gulf States Conference meet. Five matches will be played on Northeast's home course, the Bayou DeSiard Country Club layout.

DeMoss faces a big rebuilding job this year with his three top players of 1962 gone along with another letterman. Sensational freshman Glen Walker, No. 3 in the GSC last year, is now in the army; Gene Adams, the team's No. 2 man, is in law school; Jim Harper, No. 3, has given up golf to work with an accounting firm; and Bill King, a two - year letterman, has graduated.

The only letterman back from the 1962 team that won five of seven dual matches and finished third in the conference is senior Ken Renwick, the No. 4 man who averaged 78 strokes. He is joined by sophomore Mark Womack, a 1958 letterman who averaged 78 strokes and finished seventh in the GSC meet, and four newcomers.

The newcomers are headed by Houston transfer Chip Lyman of Baton Rouge, state jaycee champ in 1959 and state high school and junior titlist in 1960. Another transfer is Ken McCay, a Baton Rouge golfer who played at LSU.

Two promising freshmen are on hand — Jimmy Warren of Bastrop and Henry Hinkle of Monroe. Warren, son of Morehouse Country Club pro Leonard Warren, was a star prep linksman at Bastrop High and Hinkle was a student at Neville.

DeMoss will begin his sixth season as Northeast golf coach Friday. His teams have won 23 matches and lost 18, finished fourth in the conference twice and finished third the past three years.

The schedule:

March 1— Nicholls State, Monroe, 12:30 p.m.
March 8—Open.
March 14-15 — McNeese Invitational Tournament, Lake Charles, 8:30 a.m.
March 22—Open.

Huffty Takes 4 Firsts For Tribal Team

BATON ROUGE, La. (Special) — Gene Huffty, who also serves as assistant to coach Barry Johnson of the Northeast Louisiana State gym team, amassed 33 points on four firsts, a second, a third, and a fourth place to lead the Indians in a 70-58 victory over Louisiana State U. in a dual gymnastics meet here Wednesday night.

But Huffty was far from the whole show for Northeast. Teammate Marvin Jordan came through with 23 points and may have been the deciding factor in the win.

Coach Johnson termed the LSU team much improved since their appearance in Monroe a week ago. When in Monroe the Bengals had only two men performing due to illness, but Wednesday night the entire team competed.

Johnson also reported that Huffty was definitely not at his best against LSU.

"He was still pretty weak from his bout with a virus," coach Johnson said, "and his timing was off. Of course he still performed well but not nearly as well as he is capable.

"Jim Walker, who also has a virus, was hampered even more than Huffty," Johnson continued. "He was weak and never could really get started."

Northeast winners:

Free exercise: (1) Huffty, (4) Jordan and David Adams - tie

Long horse: (1) Jordan (2) Huffty

Side horse: (1) Jordan (4) Huffty

Rings (1) Huffty, (2) Wynn Jefferson, (5) Jordan

High bar: (1) Huffty, (2) Jordan, (3) Sam Walker

Parallel bars: (1) Huffty, (4) Jordan, (5) Adams

Roge climb: (2) Tommy Frazier, (3) Huffty, (4) Jordan.

Two Cincinnati Stars Among Popular Picks

By NORMAN MILLER

NEW YORK (UPI) — Art Heyman of Duke, the No. 1 pro prospect in college basketball, and Ron Bonham and Tom Thacker, standouts on top ranked Cincinnati, are the leading choices on the 1963 United Press International All-America team announced today.

Jerry Harkness of Loyola (Ill.) and Gary Bradds of Ohio State are the two othe. collegians honored in the UPI's annual poll of 247 sports writers and broadcasters throughout the country.

Heyman, regarded a cinch to be the first collegian drafted by the professionals in April, was the most popular choice on the team. The 21-year-old New York youth who migrated to the Carolinas for his education was a first-team choice of 201 voters and a second-team selection of 12 others. His name thus appeared on 86.2 per cent of the ballots cast.

SCORING AVERAGE LOW

Bonham and Thacker were next in popularity, followed by Harkness and Bradds, in that order.

The scoring averafe of 22.2 points per-man per-game for this year's All-America team is comparatively low (last season's, for example, averaged more than 27 points per man).

However, this year's honor five shows excellent balance, with 6-foot-8 Bradds the high scoring pivot man and rebounder; Heyman and Bonham, each 6-foot-5, the strong, aggressive forecourt men, and Thackér and Harkness, each 6-foot-2, the outside sharpshooters and ballhawks.

The consensus of the nation's college basketball experts thus selected a team dominated by four players from Midwestern schools. Heyman, Thacker and Harkness are seniors, while Bonham and Bradds are juniors.

The All-Americans also come from among the six highest ranking college teams. Cincinnati, Duke and Loyola are rated 1-2-3 by the UPI Board of Coaches and Ohio State is sixth.

Barry Kramer of New York University heads the second team which includes Nate Thurmond of Bowling Green, Rod Thorn of West Virginia, Bill Bradley of Princeton and Cotton Nash of Kentucky. They received votes in that order.

A third team is made up of: Walt Hazzard, UCLA; Dave Stallworth, Wichita; Nick Werkman of Seton Hall, the major college scoring leader; Eddie Miles, Seattle, and Bill Green, Colorado State University.

BASEBALL ROUNDUP

Mantle, Maris Highest Paid Pair From Any Single Club

By FRED DOWN
UPI Sports Writer

It'll cost the New York Yankees approximately $1,000 per game for the privilege of having Mickey Mantle and Roger Maris swing their big bats this year.

The famed M&M combination attended to the formality of signing their 1963 contracts Wednesday — for a record two-man package of $172,000. Mantle became the fifth player in baseball history to reach the $100,000 level when the Yankees gave him a $15,000 raise and Maris received the same $72,000 salary which he was paid in 1962.

Willie Mays of the San Francisco Giants is the only other active player in the $100,000-class. Others who made it were Joe DiMaggio, Ted Williams and Stan Musial.

"I hope I get at least five more good seasons," said the 31-year old Mantle, who hit. 321 and won his third American League Most Valuable Player award last season. "I would like to play as long as Stan Musial but I don't think I can."

HIGHEST EVER PAID

The $172,000 is the highest salary ever paid two players on the same team but the Yankees made it clear they are happy to do it.

"We have said many times in the past that when the time came we would be happy to pay Mickey $100,000 for a season's work," said club owner Dan Topping and General Manager Roy Hamey in a joint statement. "This past year he won the MVP award for the third time and he gained the admiration of fans and baseball people everywhere with his desire to play ball in the face of injuries that obviously hampered him."

Sandy Koufax, another star who was hampered by injuries in 1962, continued to impress in the Vero Beach, Fla., camp of the Los Angeles Dodgers. Koufax pitched 30 minutes on the sidelines for the second straight day Wednesday and said, "I think I'm in a better groove now than I've ever been at this time."

BO BELINSKY STARS

Pitcher-playboy Bo Belinsky starred in the Los Angeles Angels' batting drill, despite a stiff wind, causing Manager Bill Rigney to quip: "We might have to spot start him — using him only on windy days." A minor flaw in Belinsky's delivery of his curve ball also was corrected during the drll.

Elsewhere around the camps: Boston Red Sox slugger Dick Stuart hit seven more batting practice "homers," bringing his four-day total to 32. . .Third-baseman Gene Freese, a key man in the Cincinnati Reds' 1961 pennant triumph, shows no ill effects of the broken right ankle which sidelined him for virtually the entire 1962 season.

Outfielder Floyd Robinson ended his brief holdout when he signed with the Chicago White Sox for about $25,000. ..Relief pitcher Don Larsen of the Giants was hit on the right wrist by a ball thrown by Manager Alvin Dark and will see limited action for several days...Jim Gentile promised on arrival in the Baltimore Orioles' camp that he'll improve on his .251 1962 batting average.

First-baseman Frank Torre and catcher Earl Averill were minor casualties during the Philadelphia Phillies' workout...Stan Musial worked out in the St. Louis Cardinals' camp without a sign of the limp he was supposed to have because of an arthritic condition in his left ankle. Stan laughed off the story. ..Paul Foytack worked out with the Detroit Tigers for the first time since popping his sacroiliac last week. . .Infielder Rod Kanehl signed with the New York Mets...Cleveland sent pitcher Jerry Walker to Kansas City in return for outfielder Chuck Essegian.

No More Activity For Rice Gridder

HOUSTON (AP) — Rice University authorities ruled Wednesday that junior tackle Lewis Mazzurana, who failed to report a basketball bribe offer, can never again compete in athletics at the Houston school.

The 258-pound San Antonio lineman, who lettered as a member of the second team last year, thus received one of the strongest punishments ever dealt an athlete at Rice, although he can still remain a student.

"I don't know why this was done," Mazzurana said. "I haven't done a thing wrong other than keeping quiet about the bribe."

The big lineman held out hope he still would be able to play at Rice.

"I still want to play at Rice and I think I will. We'll just have to wait and see," he said.

A spokesman at the Rice information office said:

"Lewis Mazzurana will not be permitted to participate in intercollegiate athletics or to hold any office on the Rice campus during the remainder of his athletic career.

"It should be emphasized that Mr. Mazzurana has cooperated completely with the university, federal and state authorities in the basketball bribery investigation. This announcement does not represent an increase in the severity of action in this case."

The university spokesman said the change in Mazzurana's status was due to a misunderstanding between the intention of the university authorities and the athletic department and "it was the information from the beginning that Mr. Mazzurana would be barred from intercollegiate athletics at Rice."

Mazzurana roomed with Herb Steinkamp, who along with Dick Cramer, received an offer of $500 each from a Rice sophomore, since expelled, to fix the result of the Rice-Baylor game Feb. 19.

Carter Target In All-Charity Bowling Meet

HOUSTON (UPI) — Defending champion Don Carter will face the field today when 96 bowlers begin rolling in the Professional Bowlers Association $20,500 All-Charity Classic.

Carter won the 1962 classic but has been off to a slow start this year. He has won $3,547 in 1963 compared with the more than $40,000 he took home in 1962.

Carter, 36, and the other veterans on the tour have been having their troubles with the younger set. Last week in Dallas the St. Louis bowler lost in the quarter-finals of the All-American Classic to 25-year-old Bill Johnson of Kansas City.

It was only Johnson's fifth tournament as a pro and he went on to beat Don Ellis of Houston and Pat Patterson of St. Louis to take the $5,000 first prize money.

The win moved Johnson to number six in the top 10 on the tour this year.

Andy Marzich, 26, of Long Beach, Calif., leads the pack with $10,995 won after finishing first at Denver and Louisville. In his sophomore year on the tour, Marzich is the only bowler to win two tournaments.

There will be 86 PBA members in the Houston tournament plus another 10 local non-members for a total of 96.

The list includes such big name stars as Ed Lubanski of Detroit, Jim St. John of Chicago, and Al Savas, Dick Weber, Billy Welu and Harry Smith, all of St. Louis.

West Monroe's Boys Club Quint In Texas Tourney

The West Monroe Boys Club basketball team will leave this morning for Wichita Falls, Tex., to enter the Boys Club regional basketball tournament.

The boys will spend tonight at the Paris, Tex., Boys Club and should arrive in Wichita Falls in time for the tournament which starts at 4 p.m. Friday.

The meet will last until Saturday night and teams from throughout the Southwest are entered. The West Monroe team will return Sunday.

Kenneth Taylor, Boys Club director, and his assistant, Roscoe Holcomb, will drive the boys to Wichita Falls in station wagons.

Independent Cage Meet March 7-9 For Sterlington

STERLINGTON (Special) — The Sterlington Independent Basketball Tournament will be held March 7-9 at the Sterlington High School gymnasium. The deadline for entering is March 4.

OPEN GOLF

Par Elusive Goal At New Orleans

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Pro golfers may get a stiff test on the water-dotted Lakewood Country Club course in the $40,000 Greater New Orleans Open beginning Friday if pro-am results are any indication.

Only eight pros bettered par on the 7,000-yard layout Wednesday in the pro-am.

"That course is rough," said defending champion Bo Wininger of Oklahoma City, who didn't turn in a card after the pro-am.

Wininger, who won his title last year at municipally owned City Park, said the fairway traps were too severe. He predicted a 280 would win the tourney.

Arnold Palmer, the golden boy of golf, toured the tricky layout in a even-par 72 and said he felt it was a good score for his first time on the course.

"I think a 280 will take it," said Palmer, echoing Wininger's prediction.

Peppery Phil Rodgers and Bill Maxwell, one of the masters of the short iron, shared top honors in the pro-am with 69s. Each collected $277.50.

Six golfers, including Gary Player and Doug Sanders, the short swinging pro who won the 196[illegible] New Orleans Open, turned in 71s. Others were Doug Ford, New Zealander Bop Charles, George Ayer and Jerry Pittman.

Palmer was the big magnet in the pro-am, drawing almost 1,000 spectators.

The 33-year-old golfer electrified his followers with a sensational eagle on the 540-yard sixth hole. He chipped in from 75 yards out.

Rodgers used a hot putter to fashion his 32-37 in the pro-am. [illegible] sank birdie putts of 25, 30, 20 and 25 feet. But the 23-year-old ex-Marine got a double bogey 7 on No. 2 when he lost his ball in the woods and had to take a penalty stroke.

Maxwell bagged five birdies in his round and collected two bogeys.

Syracuse Team Effort Clouds Lakers, Baylor

By United Press International

The Syracuse Nationals are one of the National Basketball Association's best examples of how solid team play can overcome brilliant individual efforts by a rival player.

The Nationals displayed that truth for the umpteenth time Wednesday night when they scored a 122-111 victory over the Los Angeles Lakers despite a 4[illegible]-point performance by the Lakers' Elgin Baylor.

Lee Shaffer led the Syracuse scoring with 27 points, Hal Greer had 24 and Johnny Kerr had 1[illegible]. And when the Lakers crept to within a six-point deficit with six minutes left, it was Greer and then Al Bianchi who chipped in with key baskets to clinch the win.

It was the seventh straight home court victory for the Nationals.

Oscar Robertson scored [illegible] points and Tom Hawkins had [illegible] to lead the Cincinnati Royals to a 119-107 win over the New York Knicks and Si Green tallied [illegible] field goal and two free throws in the final 47 seconds as the Chicago Zephyrs downed the St. Louis Hawks, 98-93, in other games.

COOPER OF LSU ON 2ND TEAM

Tulane's Kerwin '6th Man' On All-Southeastern Quint

By VERNON BUTLER

ATLANTA (AP)—Auburn's towering Layton Johns, a big man from a small southeast Georgia town, won unanimous endorsement today from a panel of experts who selected the All-Southeastern Conference basketball team for The Associated Press.

Johns, a 6-foot-7 senior from Nahunta, Ga., was the only member of the dream team to appear on every first-team ballot of AP's seven-man advisory board. Cotton Nash of Kentucky and W. D. Stroud and Leland Mitchell of Mississippi State missed only one first-team vote, and Donnie Kessinger of Mississippi missed only two.

Tulane's Jim Kerwin, master of the jump shot and a 1962 All-SEC selection, barely missed the first team. Joining Kerwin, the SEC's leading scorer, on the second group, were Georgia Tech's 6-9 sophomore Jim Caldwell and a trio of sparkling playmakers—John Russell of Vanderbilt, Danny Schultz of Tennessee and Ellis Cooper of LSU.

Sophomores Robert Andrews of Alabama and Tom Baxley of Florida landed berths on the third team with veterans Joe Dan Gold of Mississippi State, Mike Tomasovich of Georgia Tech and John Blackwell of Auburn. Scattered votes went to 13 other players as the league achieved its best state of balance in many years.

Nash and Stroud were unanimous choices for the 1962 team, and Mississippi State's Mitchell also made the team for the second straight year. Nash and Kessinger are juniors. Johns, Mitchell and Stroud are seniors.

Hailed all season as the SEC's best big man, Johns was a tower of consistency as the youthful Auburn team drove into contention for the conference championship. He led the league for the second year in a row in field goal shooting accuracy and his aggressive work on the backboards kept Auburn near the top in rebounding percentages.

"Johns is our best player," Auburn Coach Joel Eaves declared, "and at the same time, he's our hardest worker. There hasn't been a day when he wasn't trying to improve as a basketball player. We feel he richly deserves these honors he's getting."

Nash slipped slightly from his superb form as a sophomore, but the 6-5 Kentucky ace still had enough to thrill packed houses throughout Dixie with his outside and inside shooting, rebounding and skillful floor play.

Stroud recovered swiftly from a pulled muscle and with Mitchell played a vital part in Mississippi State's bid for a third consecutive SEC title. Kessinger put lots of glitter into an otherwise drab season for Mississippi. He flirted all season with the SEC scoring lead and poured in 49 points in one magnificent night against Tulane. Another time the 6-1 sharpshooter amassed 37 points and on at least two other occasions he had 30-point productions.

Advisory board members who picked the team were Ed Ashford, sports editor of the Lexington, Ky., Herald; Lee Baker, sports editor of the Jackson, Miss., Daily News; John Logue of the Atlanta Journal; George Mooney of WKGN, Knoxville; Bob Phillips of the Birmingham Post-Herald; Edwin Pope of the Miami Herald and Bob Roesler of the New Orleans Times-Picayune.

FIRST TEAM

Layton Johns, Auburn, 6 feet 7 inches, 215 pounds, senior from Nahunta, Ga.
Charles (Cotton) Nash, Kentucky, 6-5, 219, Junior, Leominster, Mass.
Leland Mitchell, Mississippi State, 6-4, 200, senior, Kiln, Miss.
W. D. Stroud, Mississippi State, 6-1, 15, senior, Forest, Miss.
Donnie Kessinger, Mississippi, 6-1, 170, junior, Forrest City, Ark.

SECOND TEAM

Jim Kerwin, Tulane, 6-3, 175, senior, Long Branch, N.J.
Jim Caldwell, Georgia Tech, 6-9, 175, sophomore, Lawrenceburg, Ind.
John Russell, Vanderbilt, 6-0, 165, senior, St. Louis.
Elis Cooper, LSU, 6-0, 160, senior, Springhill, La.
Danny Schultz, Tennessee, 6-0, 165, junior, Middlesboro, Ky.

THIRD TEAM

Joe Dan Gold, Mississippi State, 6-5, 210, senior, Benton, Ky.
Robert Andrews, Alabama, 6-5, 200, sophomore, Bridgeport, Ill.
Tom Baxley, Florida, 5-10, 180, sophomore, Miami, Fla.
Mike Tomasovich, Georgia Tech, 6-5, 207, senior, Weirton, W.Va.
John Blackwell, Auburn, 6-2, 185, junior, Scottsboro, Ala.

ON TO FORT WORTH

Frosh Trackmen In Tribal Plans

Shorn of the great Styrons and with two other veteran aces hobbled by sprains, freshman athletes will occupy the spotlight for Northeast Louisiana State's track and field team when Coach Bob Groseclose's charges go to defend their college division title in the Southwestern Recreation Meet at Fort Worth, Tex., Saturday.

The Styron twins — sprinter Dave and hurdler Don — their college eligibility completed, led the Tribe in its triumphs last year.

Coach Groseclose said he is taking 16 athletes to Fort Worth and six of them are freshmen.

Top individuals on this year's team are quarter-miler Randail Walker and pole vaulter John Pennel. Both have been slowed by sprained ankles this week but are scheduled to compete.

Walker was unbeaten in the 440 in 1962, winning the Southwestern Recreation quarter easily in 48.5. Junior John Baker, second to Walker in Fort Worth last spring, and freshman Cline Averett will also enter the 440.

Pennel, who vaulted 15-7½ in the Telegram - Maple Leaf Indoor Games in Toronto, Canada, early this year before injuring his ankle in the Millrose Games, will be one of the favorities in the pole vault. The defending champion is another Northeast vaulter, Tommy Edmonson. Edmonson cleared 13-11 to win last year and will try to improve on that mark this week. He went 14 feet in this year's Coliseum Relays.

A mile relay team of Walker, Baker, Averett and Mike Wilson will try to win the championship Walker, Baker and the Styrons won last year. The present Northeast mile quartet won its event in the Coliseum Relays in 3:29.4.

Veterans Charles McDonald and Jay Goldsmith and freshmen Dalton LeBlanc and Don Brant will form the 440 relay team. LeBlanc, Louisiana's top prep trackman last year, will also run the high and 330-yard intermediate hurdles while the other three will run the 100 and 220.

Letterman Eugene Franklin and rookie Bob Stratton will run the highs while Franklin will join LeBlanc in the intermediates. LeBlanc and Stratton both ran the highs in 14.4 in high school.

Another freshman, Gayland LeBlanc, will be Northeast's only entry in the 880 and will run the mile with veteran George Abbott. LeBlanc was second in 1:59.6 in the Coliseum 880 while Abbott's best in the mile is 4:16.3.

Stratton, Franklin and 1961 letterman Ronnie Williams will enter the high jump and Stratton and Edmonson will compete in the broad jump. Edmonson was second in the Gulf States Conference broad jump with 22-10½ last year.

Northeast lost 10 lettermen from the undefeated 1962 team that outscored McMurry and Howard Payne in last year's Southwestern Recreation Meet. Northeast had 67¾ points last to 47¾ for McMurry and 34¾ for Howard Payne.

Neville Sends Track Squad To Tennessee

Coach Buck Stewart's Neville High track and field team opens the 1963 season by sending eight athletes to the Memphis Jaycee Indoor Track Carnival Friday night.

Boys competing will be Lee Albright, Lawrence Bennett, Russell Grantham, Eastland Gray, Fred Vogel, Freddie Moses, Gary Pappas, and Bobby Taylor.

Gray, brother of Courtland Gray (now of the Navy track team), holder of the state high hurdles record at 7.9, and Vogel will run the high and low hurdles at at Memphis. Vogel has been showing some excellent times and could rule the state in the hurdles this year. He was second to Sherrel Smith, Springhill, in the high and lows last season, and Smith is now campaigning as a collegian at Northeast State.

Grantham is scheduled to run in the mile event.

Moses and Pappas, with best times of 6.5 each, will compete in the 60-yard dash.

Albright and Lawrence will run in the 880.

Taylor is due to compete as a pole vaulter.

Twenty - three high schools, plus 11 colleges and 13 universities, will be represented at Memphis during the weekend.

MANTLE SUCCESS STORY

'Gentleman' Now Reflects From Kid From The Mines

By OSCAR FRALEY

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla. (UPI) — It was seven come 100 thousand for Mickey Mantle today and even the golden boy of the New York Yankees had trouble believing it.

Old number seven, all 31 years of him, was inked as the fifth man to draw $100,000 for one season's play in the major leagues. And, while somebody who earns that much will have to figure out how many Uncle Sam will leave him, it was highly satisfactory to the Oklahoma kid. Particularly when he remembers his servitude in the minor leagues, as brief as it was.

Mickey today is the picture of scccess. As he sat in a beach front hotel signing his contract he wore a blue silk suit and a light blue silk tie which could have been knotted by Dior and come off with less perfection.

The word which fits him, to one who has observed him ever since he arrived with the Yankees as an unsmiling, petulant, oft-angry and sometime churlish young man, was gentleman. This Mickey smiles easily and is ready with smile or gripe.

MARIS' PRESENCE HELPED

His greatest break came when Roger Maris became a Yankee and, in 1961, hit 61 home runs to break Babe Ruth's proudest one-season record. Ever since Mantle had joined the club, he felt mentally besieged to become the "new Joe DiMaggio." But in '61 the spotlight was focused on Maris and Mantle finally had time to unbend and relax. In that season he finally became the new DiMaggio.

The great DiMag was sitting quietly on the sidelines, more handsome than ever in his graying middle age and sedate blue suit. And while they waited for Mantle to sign, DiMaggio, the only other Yankee—including the legendary Ruth—to earn $100,000 a year was holding forth on what a shame it is that athletes, with their limited years, can't spread their earnings over a lifetime.

"Mickey isn't smiling right now," somebody said.

"He's probably trying to figure out how to keep some of that hundred grand," said DiMag.

But now Mickey was front and center, smiling into the television and newsreel cameras and making with the stock talk such an event seems to engender. It was later, throwing his broad shoulders back against the embrace of an overstuffed leather couch, that he really explained what this $100,000 salary meant to him.

WORKED IN MINES

"I keep thinking," he said, "of when I was making $250 a month in the minor leagues and in the off-season worked in the lead and zinc mines around Joplin, Mo., for $35 a week.

"I was in a motor crew," he explained, "We laid the power lines that run down into the depths of the mine and operate the motors that supply fresh air at the bottom. What did I do? Well, I dug post holes."

The next year he went up with the Yanks, was sent down to Kansas City, at that time an admitted farm club of the Yankees, and returned before the end of the year.

"My first full season with the Yankees," he remembered, "I received $7,500 and they promised me a $2,500 bonus if I stayed with the big club all year."

He stayed, that year of 1952, and collected $10,000.

Mickey has given up his bowling alley interests and now his only outside interest, aside from endorsements, is a motel in Joplin.

"I'd guess I'd have to say that this contract is the highlight of my career," he said happily.

The kid from the mines wasn't kidding. He has plenty of reasons. One hundred thousand of them, to be exact.

Washington; A City With A 'Problem'

EDITOR'S NOTE: Washington, D.C., is a city in trouble. This is the first of three dispatches reporting on the racial tensions, rising crime rate, school problems and governmental confusion that have contributed to what President Kennedy calls "a very bad situation" in the capital city that belongs to all Americans.

By LOUIS CASSELS

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Last Thanksgiving Day, more than 50,000 football fans crowded into the District of Columbia's new stadium to watch two high school teams battle for the city championship.

One team represented a predominantly white Catholic school, the other a predominantly Negro public school.

During the closing minutes of the game, which the Catholic school won, 20-7, a fight broke out on the playing field. Tension quickly spread to the crowd in the stands. Sensing trouble, many parents bundled up their children and headed for the exits. But it was too late. Violence erupted in the stadium the moment the game was over. Roaming gangs of Negro youths attacked white spectators in the stands, at the exits and in the streets outside the stadium. More than 300 persons were injured before police were able to restore order.

The stadium melee was the nearest thing to a race riot which Washington has experienced in many years. It threw a profound scare into residents of the community, both Negro and white. They recognized that it was not just a fight after a football game, but a symptom of ugly social tensions which have built up in this outwardly calm capital.

President Kennedy spoke the mind of many Washington residents when he told a news conference on Jan. 24 that the stadium riot "highlighted a very bad situation in the District of Columbia."

There are, as the President noted, many contributing factors. Like nearly all big cities, Washington is plagued by a rising crime rate, traffic congestion, overcrowded schools and inadequate housing for low-income families.

Unlike any other city in America, however, Washington is handicapped in coping effectively with its own municipal problems. Although it is the capital of the world's greatest democracy, its citizens do not have the right of self-government. For its laws, taxes and appropriations, Washington must look to a U. S. Congress which has not always been particularly sympathetic to its needs, and to the executive branch of the federal government, which in the past has tended to pay more attention to crises in far corners of the globe than to the explosive problems accumulating around its own doorstep.

Underlying and complicating all of Washington's problems is the rapid growth and unusual racial distribution of its population. Washington is by a wide margin the fastest-growing city in the East. Its metropolitan area population has doubled since 1940. It stands today at about 2,200,000, which makes it the nation's 10th largest urban center.

The 69-square-mile District of Columbia, which many Americans think of as being synonymous with the city of Washington, actually constitutes only the inner city of the metropolitan area. Nearly two-thirds of the population now lives outside the District of Columbia in the Maryland and Virginia suburbs.

The racial composition of the total metropolitan area has undergone little change in the past 10 years. It is three-fourths white, one-fourth Negro, approximately the same as in 1920.

But the white population is now heavily concentrated in the Maryland and Virginia suburbs, while the Negro population is confined largely to the inner city. As a result, the District of Columbia has become the only major U.S. city with a Negro majority. Its population is 54 per cent Negro, 46 per cent white. If present trends continue, the District of Columbia population will be 72 per cent Negro by 1970.

Because white families with school-age children have moved to the suburbs in disproportionate numbers, the racial imbalance of the district's public schools is even greater than that of its general population. About 85 per cent of the students enrolled in D.C. public schools this year are Negroes.

The Washington schools, which were desegregated by Supreme Court order in 1954, have been virtually "re-segregated" by population shifts.

Washington's Negro community includes many middle and upper-class families who live in handsome homes and send their children to the best private schools and colleges. But it also includes a vastly larger number of poor, uneducated and unskilled people who have moved from rural areas of the South into an urban environment with whose complexities they are ill-equipped to cope.

Census studies show that 5 per cent of the Negro adults in the District of Columbia have less than a high school education. One out of ten is illiterate. One-fourth of the Negro families live on incomes of less than $60 a week.

Social unrest among the newly urbanized Negroes has been heightened by resentment of racial barriers. Although all of Washington's public facilities—schools, buses, restaurants and theaters—are desegretated, Negroes still encounter "white only" policies in many sectors of private employment and housing.

DE-AUTOMATED

EAST ST. LOUIS, Ill. (UPI) — Firemen used a durable kettle lid and metal ladle as a temporary substitute for the automatic alarm system.

An electrical malfunction knocked out the system. While repairmen searched for the trouble, assistant fire chief Charles Cadell borrowed the utensils from the department's kitchen.

When the dispatcher received a call reporting a fire, he turned on the intercom system and rapped the lid sharply with the ladle.

It worked. The banging attracted the attention of all stations.

Showers are forecast for the north Pacific coast and occasional rain in the north and central Rockies with snow flurries in the higher elevations. It will be slightly warmer in the Northwest and northern Plains with little change elsewhere. (AP Wirephoto Map)

Leaking Vessel Out Of Danger

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — The fishing vessel Contoy, which developed a fast leak on its maiden voyage into the Gulf of Mexico, was reported out of danger today.

A Coast Guard seaplane dropped two pumps to the $45,000 ship Wednesday night after it began taking on water some 120 miles north of the Yucatan Peninusla.

The first pump was not enough to control the water but after the second pump reached the Contoy the vessel said it was no longer in danger.

The Contoy was en route from Pascagoula, Miss., with a 9-man crew when the leak developed.

Federal Aid To Poverty Point Gets Opposition

Several area residents, including two of the landowners adjacent to the proposed Poverty Point National Park, Wednesday were in Monroe to map plans for opposition to the move. The group, including members of the North Louisiana Archaeological Society, are seeking to make the area a state or local park.

The leaders in the movement are opposing the take over by the federal government and are contacting solons from the state in Washington, D. C., in an effort to further their plans.

Among the group locally were Paul Hodges and Louis Whitfield, president and vice - president respectively of the Archaeological Society, and Lloyd and Steve Neal, owners of a plantation adjacent to the Poverty Point site.

The Neals own and farm a large tract of land immediately north of the point and are concerned over proposals in the House Bill 1694, presently pending in Congress, which would take a portion of their place. Both say the proposed 2100 acres, if passed by Congress and taken over, would destroy their farming interests by taking the better farming lands. It would also force several other persons out of farming in the area.

The actual acreage originally proposed was 300, which would be sufficient to take care of all of the pre - historic Indian mounds.

However, since the proposals were made to make this area into a federal park, a number of persons, including amateur archeologists in the area, are opposing the move.

Both Hodges and Whitfield expressed belief that a take over by the federal government would result in the removal of artifacts from the area. The move, the two said, would prevent the working and visiting by amateur archeologists and would, in effect, destroy any local interest in the area.

Speaking for the landowners, both Lloyd and Steve Neal said they know of no residents of the area who have been contacted in any person or government agent, although much of their land is being proposed as part of the federal area.

The first they knew of the move, both of the men stated, was when they read of it in the newspaper.

Since that time, they have been working to determine the exact limits of the proposed park.

Nearly one half of the farm, which their family has occupied and tilled since 1917, would be taken into the proposed park. As of Wednesday, both said, they have been contacted, although they have contacted Congressman Otto E. Passman and others in opposition to the move.

In the proposed bill, the acquisition of the land could be obtained thruogh the purchase or "otherwise." This particular phase caused some consternation among the local residents, since it infers, Hodges said, that the federal government may expropriate the land from the owners.

9 Persons Killed In Alaska Crash

FAIRBANKS, Alaska (AP)—A KC135 jet tanker taking off from Eielson Air Force Base exploded over a guard house at an entrance to the field Wednesday night, killing nine persons.

All seven aboard the plane were killed. The other two died when the explosion flattened the guard house and a nearby waiting room.

A witness said that as the plane passed over the guard house flames appeared and then it exploded.

The four-engined plane veered to the left and crashed about a quarter of a mile from the gate. It smashed into the Alaska Highway, which runs by the base to Fairbanks, 26 miles to the north.

BISCUIT, BREAD AND ROLL RECIPES

Quik 'n Sure Biscuits are almost fool proof to make since the baking powder and salt are evenly distributed throughout the flour. You simply add the shortening and milk.

Angel Biscuits are a new taste treat in hot breads. They are actually biscuits containing yeast. But no rising time is required!

Garlic Biscuits are nippy tasting from the garlic and tomatoes that are poured over the unbaked biscuits. Serve them with plain meats such as chicken, round steak and ground beef patties.

Yorkshire Pudding is especially delicious served with roast. It's very easy to prepare. Should be served hot.

Supreme Chicken and Dumpling Casserole is elegant enough for any company menu. It's simply a combination of cooked chicken, hard cooked eggs and Dixie Lily Dumplings.

Raisin Muffins add zest and interest to breakfast, lunch or with dinner. If you have a young cook in the family let her make these.

Caramel Nut Bread is wonderful as a between-meal snack and as dessert in packed lunches. It's slightly sweet but more like bread than cake.

Cornmeal Raisin Bread contains cornmeal and flour in equal portions. It's different in texture and taste. Serve it with dinner soon.

Quick Yeast Rolls and Cinnamon Twists are easy to make for even an inexperienced cook. The dough only rises once after the rolls or twists are already shaped.

Each recipe is illustrated . . . easy-to-read and easy-to-prepare. Kitchen-tested and family-pleasing, too! Ten appetizing recipes you'll love to make and serve. Look for it . . . and others to come . . . packed inside specially-marked sacks of Dixie Lily Self-Rising Flour.

IN TWIN CITIES

Food Bargains Varied Today

By MARY ANNE CORPIN
Staff Writer

Planning menus this weekend should be a pleasure for the thrifty housewife. Twin City grocery stores and super markets are offering many excellent values, from fruit and vegetables to beef, pork, lamb and eggs.

In the produce line, best buys include Washington pears, red and gold Delicious Washington apples, Winesap apples and Florida grapefruit. They're all fine eating and reasonably priced.

A local wholesaler terms the grapefruit "the best of the season."

Lemons are somewhat cheaper than in the past, quality is better and the supply is more plentiful.

Very fine Mexican strawberries are reasonably priced.

The quality of bananas is improving and should continue to do so as the weather becomes warmer. Bananas are moderately priced.

Florida oranges are in the stores Although of excellent quality, they are high priced. California navel oranges also are described as "very fine, but rather expensive."

LETTUCE

Lettuce and celery both are of first line quality and are comparatively cheap.

Carrots are very low priced, as is Texas green cabbage, and both are of fine quality.

Kentucky wonder beans are becoming more plentiful and reasonably priced. The first Florida new potatoes are available as "go-alongs" with the beans. This makes an excellent dish. Supplies of both items will increase as the season progresses.

Yellow crooked - neck squash is coming in, and appears to be a pretty good buy this weekend.

Greens no longer show the effects of the frost, quality is improving and prices are moderating. Turnip tops, mustards and collards are available.

Delicious Florida corn and the first shipment of South American okra are top-grade, but rather expensive.

Cucumbers, eggplant and bell pepper all are excellent quality and prices are dropping somewhat.

Vegetable supplies include plentiful red and white potatoes and onions.

Tomato prices are much higher this week, but quality is good.

BEEF

A local executive for a national meat company terms beef hind quarters the best value in meat this week.

He explained that the cold weather has caused a surge in roast (front quarter) purchases, with the resultant decline in sale of steaks.

This means that steaks are more plentiful and wholesalers are selling this section of beef for less — so look for the values to be passed on at the meat counters.

Both the national company executive and the official of a local meat packing company said that beef and pork are "plentiful and exceptionally good buys" this week.

"Pork is a good bit cheaper than it has been in the past four or five weeks. This includes chops. I believe we've had a two cent decline per pound in the last two weeks," one wholesaler noted.

Lamb and bacon also are good values this week.

Best buy in eggs is the large size — there's a two cent difference in price bwtween medium and large, and another two cent difference between large and extra large.

Prices on the large eggs should go up soon, due to increased demand during Lent and results of the weather conditions.

BOATING IN WIS.

CHICAGO (UPI) — About 40 per cent of the persons using boats on Wisconsin waters are non - residents. Most operators are 30 years of age or older and the large majority use outboard motors of 19 horsepower or less, says Wisconsin's Conservation Dept.

Meat Bargains Include Beef, Pork In March

If March is the month for madness, you'll be wild about this month's meat bargains.

It's an especially good month for beef buys. As part of this year's expected record beef production, beef supplies for March will be more than a year ago, predicts the American Meat Institute. Look for steak sales in those parts of the country where outdoor cookery is still out of season.

Pork supplies will continue to be high — more than a year ago, the American Meat Institute estimates. For a thrifty way to get that good pork flavor, try end-cut pork chops and shoulder steaks. It's a good time to satisfy your taste for barbecued spareribs before outdoor living increases the demand and price. Lamb and veal supplies may be less than a year ago.

A day to mark on your calendar is March 17, St. Patrick's Day, when the aroma of corned beef and cabbage smells as sweet as spring flowers.

March 21 is the official beginning of spring. Stores will feature spring cleaning hints and busy-day menu suggestions. Don't forget that handy meats-in-a-can offer a wealth of main dish ideas and are a timesaver as well.

Good neighbors will remember March 30, National Shut - In Day. Set aside an individual serving from your next casserole and put it in a disposable container as a treat for a stay - at - home. A gaily beribboned basket of homemade cookies and pastries might be appreciated, too.

When you are frying fish in shallow fat, you can have the fat just deep enough to come half way up the pieces of fish.

STRAWBERRY MERINGUE

Dainty Puffs Are Simple

Light, crunchy, crisp — satisfying but not colying — these Strawberry Meringue Puffs are the perfect dessert.

Pretty to look at . . . delightful to eat . . . these dainty puffs are extremely simple to make. Their appearance belies the ease with which you can whip them up.

They're delicious all by themselves or served with sherbets, water ices or ice cream. Or try tbem with light puddings, such as minute tapioca, with a dollup of jam on the top to give the "ensemble" effect to puffs and pudding.

While the puffs are inexpensive enough to make just for the family, you'll find them so good you'll want to serve them to your most important guests.

Be sure to notice in the recipe — you can make the puffs well ahead of time, but to retain their appealing crunchy texture, top with jam just before you're ready to serve.

STRAWBERRY MERINGUE PUFFS

4 egg whites
½ teaspoon almond extract
⅛ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon cream of tartar
1 cup granulated sugar (sifted)
6 tablespoons strawberry jam, plus extra for topping
2 teaspoons lemon juice

Beat egg whites until stiff, add almond extract, salt and cream of tartar, continue beating and add the sugar 2 tablespoons at a time. When mixture will hold its shape and is satin smooth, add the 6 tablespoons strawberry jam and lemon juice, beat until entirely blended. Put the meringue in a pastry bag or cookie press and shape into individual drops about the size of a ping pong ball. Place on greased cookie sheet. (these may also be shaped by dropping from a spoon). Make a deep impression in each by using the back of a teaspoon. Bake at 275 degrees for 15 minutes then lower temperature to 225 degrees for 20 to 30 minutes. Meringue puffs should bake until the surface looks dry and is firm to the touch. If a darker pink color is desired add a drop or two of red vegetable coloring just before the mixture is shaped into puffs. Cool and then top with extra strawberry jam when ready to serve. (Yield. . . 30 to 40 Puffs)

Variety Suggestions for Strawberry Meringue Puffs

1. Add 2 cups shredded coconut and 1 cup of sliced almonds to the recipe and drop from a spoon, bake at 350 degrees until delicately browned, about 20 minutes.

2. Shape the puffs as a nest and when ready to serve fill with ice cream and top with strawberry jam.

THE MAJESTIC Teton Mountain range towers in background as group of northern Yellowstone elk gathers on winter feeding grounds at Wyoming's Yellowstone National Park. Methods used to reduce the size of the herd have created a controversy between the National Park Service, states surrounding the wilderness park and thousands of sportsmen in the U.S. (AP Wirephoto)

Increase In Elk Herd Irritating

YELLOWSTONE NATIONAL PARK, Wyo. (AP)—Possibly no population explosion anywhere has stirred such concentrated controversy as that which has been occurring in a remote valley in the extreme northwest corner of Wyoming.

There, in a section of Yellowstone National Park, range the 5,000 animals in the northern Yellowstone elk herd—unaware of the problems they are creating for themselves, other wildlife and humans hundreds of miles away.

For 30 years the increasing elk herd has been a source of irritation to the National Park Service, states surrounding the wilderness park and thousands of sportsmen.

The dispute is over how to control the size of the herd and keep it in line with what the park service thinks is desirable for the animals' wellbeing, the preservation of natural forage and the enjoyment of tourists who swarm through the park.

The issue reached a bitter climax last winter when 5,000 elk were slaughtered in their winter feeding grounds. New outcries followed an announcement that this winter's required reduction of 1,800 head had been completed. The reduction included shooting of 400 elk by park rangers.

Now, the air has been allowed to clear somewhat and observers feel a solution is closer than at any time in the past three years when the heavy reduction program began.

But as Wyoming Gov. Cliff Hansen says, much still needs to be done before there is really any understanding between the National Park Service, which runs the park, and the surrounding states and various sportsmen's groups. Montana Gov. Tim Babcock said he hopes this winter marks the end of elk shooting inside Yellowstone.

The elk range both in and outside the park in small bands during good weather, usually high in the mountains and rarely within sight of any human eyes.

But in winter, the elk are driven to lower elevations by the snows and gather on 125,000 acres in the Lamar River Valley in northwestern Yellowstone park to wait for spring. There the problem begins. The elk are ravenous eaters. Whitetail deer and beaver are almost extinct in the park because the elk destroy their feed.

In 1914, some 35,300 elk came to winter in the valley. By spring, 14,000 were dead of "winter kill"—natural causes or starvation.

Since the 1930s, there has been an effort to keep the herd's population in line both to protect the feeding grounds for the elk and other wildlife and to prevent the animals from starving to death.

Last winter, the park service said it was necessary to cut the herd in half to reach the 5,000 that the valley can sustain. This was to be done by having park rangers shoot the animals as they were gathered in the snow-clogged feeding grounds.

Protests came from Wyoming, Montana, Idaho and other states as well as from sportsmen. They all objected to the proposed slaughter program which park Supt. L. A. Garrison has called "an unhappy consequence of civilization."

Among the suggestions offered as alternative reduction methods were:

Opening the park to private hunters who could reduce the herd through legitimate sport; trapping the animals alive and moving them to areas outside the park to build new herds; or just letting nature take care of the problem as it had in 1914-15.

Finally, an agreement was reached whereby a migration study could be started so that more could be learned of elk movements and perhaps increase the kill by hunters outside the park.

There also was agreement on a stepped-up trapping and transplanting program. Wyoming said it would take all the elk it could get.

A dispute over transplanting flared sporadically throughout 1962. Some states — Colorado among them—contended the elk were diseased. Wyoming has denied this.

The park service announced that 1,800 head had to be removed from the herd this winter.

Montana held a successful special hunting season along the northern border of the park to help in cutting the 1,800 figure some. Limited trapping was started. Then it was revealed that rangers again were shooting the animals.

Govs. Hansen and Babcock immediately protested.

After a meeting, Garrison told newsmen that future reductions probably would be handled through hunting outside the park and in the trapping program which proved to be successful, providing 376 elk for Wyoming and some 200 for Montana.

TURNED DOWN APPEAL

LONDON (UPI)—The Court of Criminal Appeals recently turned down Barbara Fell's application for an appeal from a two-year jail sentence given her for mishandling secret documents.

The former civil servant was convicted of taking documents from the central office of information where she worked and giving them to Smiljan Pecjac, a Yugoslav diplomat.

Orleans Trial Centers On Search Warrant

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — The federal district court trial of nine men accused in a nationwide gambling syndicate centered today on a search warrant.

The men were accused of defrauding the government by using unauthorized long distance telephone calls in operation of the syndicate.

Defense attorneys objected Wednesday when a government witness testified he had taken part in a raid on the home of Louis E. (Buster) Bagneris in nearby Arabi on May 24, 1956. The witness, James L. McCormick, special agent of the Internal Revenue Service's intelligence division, said a search was made of the premises under a search warrant.

The defense objected to further testimony unless the warrant could be produced. Court records failed to show that the warrant had been issued.

Bagneris, one of 13 men indicted in the case, has pleaded guilty but has not been sentenced. The government contended that he alone could contest the validity of the search and that he had not done so.

Defense attorneys argued that the search was invalid unless the warrant could be produced. The attorneys said they had the right to attack the legality of the search because the government claimed that it is connected with some of the men on trial.

On trial are Anthony P. Glorioso of New Orleans; Eugene A. Nolan of Baton Rouge; Peter J. Martino of Biloxi, Miss.; Robert and Benjamin Lassoff and Myron Decklebaum o Cincinnati; Alfred Reyn of New York; Gilbert Lee Beckley of Surfside, Fla.; and Alfred Mones of Miami Beach, Fla.

Two other persons who pleaded guilty before the trial commenced are Harold E. Brouphy and Charles A. Perez, both of New Orleans.

Another defendant, Sam Di-Piazza of Arabi, was granted a separate trial because of illness.

Barnett May Seek Racial Legislation

JACKSON, Miss. (AP)—Speculation mounted today that Gov. Ross Barnett will seek major legislation in the racial field during this special session of the Mississippi Legislature.

Barnett requested the invitation to address a joint House-Senate session at 2:15 p.m. today on an undisclosed subject that took on an aura of mystery because administration leaders regarded it as a top secret.

One source said the well-guarded text would involve a plan to strengthen third party politics with a view toward giving the state another segregation weapon. Barnett conceded it would require legislation.

The governor bolted the national Democratic ticket in 1960 and led the state into the unpledged elector camp. The source said the plan involved giving the independent movement virtual third-party status and opening the way for control of the state electors.

Barnett is known to have conferred with segregation and unpledged elector leaders Wednesday, including Hinds County Judge Russel Moore and Dr. Ney Williams of Jackson.

Barnett declined to say what he would discuss but he told The Associated Press "it will be something new." His legislative leaders also said they were not at liberty to disclose the governor's subject.

The House approved the speech invitation Wednesday and it went to the Senate for approval at its 10 a.m. session today.

Interest in the governor's talk overshadowed legislative actions virtually killing the sheriff succession proposal and sending reapportionment nearer to final passage.

The House Constitution Committee voted 8-2 against two proposed constitutional amendment backed by the Mississippi Sheriffs Association to let incumbents succeed themselves in office without splitting the posts of sheriff and tax collector, and enabling the legislature to fix salaries of sheriffs.

The House gave 126-8 passage to a bill reorganizing the House and Senate under a new legislative apportionment ratified by the voters Feb. 5.

DANISH STUFFED SPARERIBS

2 sides (about 3 pounds each) fresh pork spareribs
1 cup prunes (water-soaked overnight)
4 medium or large apples
2 tablespoons sugar
2 tablespoons flour
1/8 teaspoon cinnamon
1 cup drained canned pineapple chunks
Salt, pepper and extra flour

Choose matching fleshy sparerib sides. Drain prunes; pit and quarter. Pare and core apples; cut each into eighths; mix with sugar, flour and cinnamon, then with prunes and pineapple.

Sprinkle one sparerib side with salt and pepper; spread fruit mixture over meat; cover with other sparerib side; skewer together all edges. Spinkle top of meat with salt, pepper and 2 or 3 teaspoons flour. On a rack in a roasting pan, brown meat in a very hot (450 degrees) oven for 20 to 30 minutes. Cover pan with foil; continue to roast in a moderate (375 degrees) oven 1 hour or until tender. About 15 minutes before end of roasting time, gravy in pan may be removed and fat skimmed off, and the ribs returned — uncovered — to a hot (425 degrees) oven to brown. Reheat gravy to serve with ribs. Makes 6 servings.

HOT, HEARTY

Seafood Is Key To Lenten Chili

Seafoods are certainly deserving of their slogan for Lent — "Tastes good . . . good for you." There's no need to extol their virtues of rich flavor, fine texture and all - round appetite appeal.

But many people are not aware that seafoods are among the most nourishing foods known to man. They are rich sources of the most valuable kind of protein that is complete in the essential amino acids, in addition to health-protecting vitamins and minerals. As if this weren't enough, fish and shellfish have an added attribute that has only recently come to be appreciated. They are low in fats with those fats present being largely of the desirable polyunsaturated type.

This hot and hearty Lenten Chili is proof that foods from the sea taste good, and you can take the assurance of leading nutritionists that they're good for you, too.

LENTEN CHILI

1 pound fish fillets, fresh or frozen (haddock, cod, flounder, ocean perch or other white-meated fish)
3 tablespoons butter or margarine
2 medium onions, chopped
2 cloves garlic, minced
2 tablespoons chili seasoning
1/4 teaspoon crushed red pepper or dash of cayenne
1 teaspoon salt
1 (1-lb. 12-oz.) can tomatoes
1 (1-lb. 4-oz.) can red kidney beans

If fish is frozen, let partially thaw on refrigerator shelf or at room temperature. Melt butter or margarine in a large saucepan. Add onions and garlic and cook until tender. Add chili seasoning, pepper and salt; stir to blend. Add tomatoes and kidney beans; cook about 30 minutes, stirring frequently and chopping tomatoes as you stir.

Cut fillets into chunks; add to chili and cook about 10 minutes for thawed fish, 12 to 14 minutes if still somewhat frozen. Serve in soup bowls. Makes 4 to 6 servings.

PEANUT BUTTER PIE is a new adaptation of an old Southern recipe - - and the perfect way to enjoy National Peanut Week March 3 to 9.

Peanuts Gain Recognition Next Week

You have heard of the famous pecan pie of deep South fame; and perhaps you've heard of the peanut pie. But have your heard of a Peanut Butter Pie? We give you the recipe today in honor of National Peanut Week which is March 3-9. It was adapted in a Peanut Butter firm's Test Kitchens from an old Southern recipe.

PEANUT BUTTER PIE

Filling

1 cup light or dark corn syrup
1 cup sugar
3 eggs, slightly beaten
1/2 teaspoon vanilla
1-3 cup creamy or chunk style peanut butter

Shell

1 unbaked 9-inch pastry shell

Blend filling ingredients. Pour into unbaked pastry shell. Bake in 400 degress F. (hot) oven, 15 minutes. Reduce heat to 350 degree F. (moderate) and bake pie 30 to 35 minutes longer. (Filling should appear slightly less set in center than around edge).

1-2-3 PASTRY FOR ONE-CRUST PIE

(9-inch)

1 1-3 cups sifted flour
1/2 teaspoon salt
1-3 cup corn oil
2 tablespoons cold water

Mix flour and salt. Blend oil in thoroughly with fork. Sprinkle all of water over mixture; mix well. Press dough firmly into ball with hands. If too dry, mix in 1 to 2 tablespoons more oil.

Flatten dough slightly; immediately roll into 12-inch circle between 2 pieces waxed paper. Wipe table with damp cloth to keep paper from slipping. Peel off top paper; place pastry in pan, paper - side-up. Peel off paper, fit pastry loosely into pan. Trim 1/2-inch beyond rim of pan. Fold under and flute. Bake as recipe directs.

Atom-Smashing Bevatron Rebuilt

BERKELEY, Calif. (AP) — The University of California's atom-smashing Bevatron has been rebuilt at a cost of $9.6 million for renewed research into nuclear mysteries.

"A large part of what we know about the particles of matter has come out of research with the Bevatron," Dr. Edwin M. McMillan, Lawrence Radiation Laboratory director, said Wednesday.

The 10,000-ton machine went to work in 1954 as a high energy atom smasher developing 6.2 billion electron volts. It was the tool Lawrence Laboratory scientists used in discovering the antiproton in 1955 and the antineutron in 1956.

The Atomic Energy Commission financed the remodeling work requiring eight months.

Actress Settles Damage Suit

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Actress France Nuyen has settled a $100,000 damage suit brought by stripper Beverly Hills.

The amount of the settlement was not disclosed in the announcement Wednesday.

Miss Hills, in private life Beverly Jean Powers, 23, claimed she was injured March 10, 1961, when a car in which she was a passenger collided with the actress' auto.

Walker Attacks United Nations

MIAMI (UPI) — Former Maj. Gen. Edwin A. Walker opened "Operation Midnight Ride," a five-week, 17-state speaking tour, Wednesday night with a verbal barrage against the United Nations.

Traveling with the 30-year Army veteran was Billy James Hargis, head of the conservative Christian Crusade. Speaking before Walker, Hargis attacked the National Council of Churches and defended the House Committee on Un-American Activities.

In the first of their appearances Walker and Hargis drew a crowd estimated at 1,600 persons at $1 each.

Persons entering the Dade County auditorium were given blank checks made out to the Christian Crusade. Ushers later collected filled-out checks in plastic buckets.

Walker, who resigned his commission in 1961 after being removed from command of the 24th Division in Germany, said the U. N. is "supporting Khrushchev in Cuba."

Walker, who ran unsuccessfully for governor of Texas following his removal from command on charges including attempts to influence the votes of his troops, said the U. N. was "pleased" at the use of federal troops in the University of Mississippi integration crisis last fall.

"Whether the U. N. sent them (the troops) there or not, I cannot say, but it pleased the U. N. for them to be there," said Walker, who was arrested during the rioting on the Mississippi campus. Federal charges against him were later dropped.

Walker and Hargis said the purpose of their tour is to fight communism and particularly the threat of communism from Cuba.

Aging Actor Plays Coy About Marriage

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Actor Paul Lukas replying to rumors he is married or is planning to marry a young Majorcan girl, said, "You never know what's going to happen with a crazy man like myself."

Lukas, 68, was questioned Wednesday about a report he was planning to wed Anna Mescina of Majorca.

A friend, who declined use of his name, quoted Lukas as saying the wedding took place at the American Embassy in Madridbefore Lukas came to this country several months ago.

Lukas' wife, Daisy, died about a year ago after they had been separate for a number of years.

WALL STREET

NEW YORK (AP)—The stock market shaved some early losses early this afternoon but remained lower.

Declines among key issues generally were fractional and a few small gains appeared on the tape.

Trading was fairly active but had slowed from its opening pace.

Brokers said investors appeared to want to play it cautious for a while and take some profits in view of uncertainties over the Kennedy tax program and international affairs.

Motors, rubbers, aircrafts, chemicals and rails eased. Steels and tobaccos were mixed.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks was off .7 at 253.9 with industrials off 1.3, rails up .1 and utilites off .4.

Active trading in Eastman Kodak pushed it about 3 points ahead on expectations the company would have an important announcement during the day.

AT&T and Chrysler held small gains at one time but these evaporated.

Among the minor advances were Republic Steel, RCA, Commonwealth Edison, International Nickel, Westinghouse and Lorillard.

Pfizer, down more than a point, was the widest loser among the drugs.

Losers of about a point included Union Carbide, Texas Instruments and Korvette.

Usually a wider mover, IBM was off less than a point.

U.S. Steel and General Motors showed declines of minor fractions.

Prices were lower in slow trading on the American Stock Exchange.

Government and corporate bond prices were mostly unchanged.

WALL STREET CHATTER

NEW YORK (UPI) — W. I. La Tourette of Shearson, Hammill & Co. says market action during the past few weeks has been "impressive" in the face of increased international tension, confusion about the proposed tax bill and the collapse of negotiations for British entry into the Common Market.

With indications that public participation in the market is still very limited but is broadening out, periods of weakness such as the present should be regarded as providing good purchase opportunities, he feels.

La Tourette thinks such groups as the oils, railroad equipments, telephones, banks, insurance and trucking stock, among others, appear especially attractive at this time.

Edward F. Underhill of Ira Haupt & Co. says that, for the present, the action of the steels and rails should have a decisive bearing on whether or not a general correction takes place. Buying in these groups, he notes, had the effect of averting an incipient decline two weeks ago.

Convict Wins 50-Year Fight For Freedom

NAGOYA, Japan (AP) — Ishimatsu Yoshida won a 50-year battle today to clear himself of a murder conviction. The 83-year-old Japanese said he could now die in peace.

A three-man higher court in Nagoya, central Japan, acquitted the feeble old man of a 1913 murder for which he was sentenced to death. His sentence was commutted to life imprisonment and he served 21 years.

FARMER AT TIME

Barely able to walk, Yoshida shuffled into court supported by two attendants. He had told his lawyers that he would stand up and shout "Banzai" (long live) if acquitted. But when the verdict came, all he could do was nod his head.

Yoshida was convicted of murdering a silk merchant in Nagoya and robbing him of the equivalent of 50 cents. A 32-year-old farmer at the time, Yoshida was convicted on the evidence of two men who said they were his accomplices.

Released from prison on an amnesty, Yoshida tracked down one of the pair who had testified against him and got from him a written apology saying he had lied in his testimony.

Beginning in 1935, Yoshida petitioned five times for a retrial. The authorities invariably rejected is petition.

His persistence finally won the attention of the Japan Civil Liberties Union and the bar association. Their support got the old man the retrial.

Presiding Judge Toichi Kobazashi, in reversing the original sentence, agreed Yoshida had been convicted on perjured evidence. The court's ruling entitles him to between 200 and 400 yen a day for each day in prison after his conviction, or in his case a maximum of $8,750.

Grim Choice Faces Ban Negotiators

GENEVA (AP)—U.S. and British disarmament negotiators seemed to face a grim choice today between unacceptable Soviet terms for a nuclear test ban or failure after four years of negotiations.

Despite the Soviet stand, American and British spokesmen said their governments would persevere with their efforts in the 17-nation disarmament negotiations.

They said they thought agreement still was possible.

The external evidence pointed the other way.

The Soviet terms for a test ban are simple: A maximum of three on-site inspections per year to check on indications of underground nuclear explosions and three sealed seismograph recorders—black boxes—on Soviet territory.

Premier Khrushchev told a Kremlin audience Wednesday, "nothing more can be expected from us."

The U.S. and British governments consider three inspections and three black boxes totally inadequate to provide a foolproof check on the vast territory of the Soviet Union. The Western powers have demanded a minimum of seven of each.

The Soviet Union has not give an inch in this argument since th talks resumed on Feb. 12.

Soviet Ambassador Semyon K Tsarapkin startled the Wester delegations Wednesday with new damper on their hopes for a acceptable treaty.

The Soviet Union will not allo the black boxes to form an inde pendent detection network cove ing all of Soviet territory, he said

Masked Burglar In Fur Sent To Dog Pound

SPRINGFIELD, Mo. (AP)—Ed Edgar heard a noise at his front entrance Wednesday night and found a masked burglar in a fur coat opening his storm door.

Edgar called police.

Officers watched in amazement as the burglar—a raccoon—mounted a four-inch ledge under a picture window, pressed the doorbell with a paw and pulled on the door handle.

Patrolman Thomas Jones said the 'coon tried a break-in earlier at a house in the next block. The householder reported his bell rang and his front door slammed repeatedly but he couldn't find anyone at the door.

Officers took the coon to the dog pound.

Four States Win High School Marks

By ROBERT M. ANDREWS
United Press International

WASHINGTON UPI)— Professional educators today gave high marks to four states—California, Illinois, New Jersey and Washington—for passing their test of a good public school system.

The judgment was made by the National Education Association (NEA) in "Ranking of the States, 1963," a booklet measuring the nation's educational fitness 90 different ways.

The NEA cautioned that statistics can be misleading, but suggested that states ranking in the top 25 per cent of the nation in these categories "could probably be considered among the better state school systems":

Percentage of eight-graders in 1958 who finished high school in 1962;

Amount a state spends on each pupil:

Average teacher salary;

Proportion of teachers holding a bachelor's degree.

Of states in the top one-fourth of the nation, New Jersey, scored in all four categories, and California, Illinois and Washington in three.

Individually, Wisconsin ranked tops in keep 92.3 per cent of its eight-graders until high school graduation.

Georgia was lowest with 51.8 per cent.

New York State spent the most on each public school pupil—$645. Mississippi spent the least—$230. The national average in 1962-63 was $432.

California pays its classroom teachers the most—an average of $7,050—while the lowest average salary of $3,610 is in Mississippi. The national average is $5,735.

Drop-outs continued to be a serious problem in some states. Of youths 16 or 17 years old, 90.5 per cent still were enrolled in Oregon, but only 69 per cent in South Carolina.

Other findings of the NEA:

Sparsely populated South Dakota's teachers had an average of 19.2 children in each class, the smallest in the country. The most croweded classrooms were in Alabama, with 30 children each.

Utah ranked highest in persons 25 or older with a high school education or better—55.8 per cent. Kentucky was lowest with 27.6 per cent.

In Louisiana, 21.3 per cent of persons 25 or older have had less than five years of schooling; in Utah, only 2.8 per cent.

DESI TO MARRY

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Desi Arnaz will marry Edie Mack Hirsch in Las Vegas, Nev., on Saturday—his 46th birthday.

Arnaz, who built a television empire with his former wife Lucille Ball, was divorced in 1960. They established the Desilu Studios, and were among the top television stars with "I Love Lucy" for many years.

Plunge Fatally Injures Worker At Farmerville

FARMERVILLE (Special) — A 24-year-old ex-Marine was killed here after falling 30-feet into the bottom of the city water tank here.

Charles B. Cummings of Woodlawn, Tex. was helping a crew of three other men employed by a Pittsburgh, Kan. construction company to clean and repaint the town's water tank.

As he was climbing from the water tank he evidently fell backward. The young ex-Marine was killed instantly after striking his head on a pipe at the bottom of the tank about 3:15 p.m., Dr. John G. Norris of Farmerville, Union Parish coroner said.

The victim sustained a fractured skull, neck and right arm, the coroner said.

The body was lowered from the 120-foot high water tower and taken to Kilpatrick's Funeral Home here to await transportation to Texas.

Mainbocher Drops Hem Below Knees

By JEAN SPRAIN WILSON
AP Fashion Writer

NEW YORK (AP)—Those privileged few women who can afford to expose a Mainbocher label in their clothes will not expose their knees next season.

The famous custom designer's hem lengths are too long for that.

They are only a quarter of an inch longer than usual, Mainbocher told fashion writers at his late spring review Wednesday. Yet most daytime clothes went to greater lengths (by two inches) than most American fashions this year.

Topped by brief hip-length jackets, suit skirts gathered at the waist front or flared gently at the bottom to provide plenty of stride room for a new generation of active women.

Young models in low-T-strap shoes with thick "grandma" heels slipped in and out of Mainbocher's carpeted parlor in the new collection. However, handsome dowagers might have modeled these costumes just as effectively, so lacking were theyinostentation, flamboyance or style slavishness.

Necklines never plunged too far. Backlines stopped in time, and only once was a shoulder, and then only one, daringly exposed. Bias-cut dresses skimmed the body, but none ever clung.

Mainbocher lamented the passing of the long rows of tiny exquisitely sewn buttons at the sleeves and throats on his costumes during his Paris heyday in favor of the expedient zipper.

Instead, the designer who created the Duchess of Windsor's historic wedding gown generously dotted his modern collection with wafer-like pearl buttons on suits, coats and dresses alike.

Along with buttons were bows and large artificial flowers, lace flounces, and eyelet embroidered blouses.

Fabrics and textures were combined with a spirit of independence. Tweed coats were partners to check dresses. Diaphanous blouses tucked into woolly skirts. Black jackets topped off-gay hued skirts.

Chiffon was either tailored or whispy, and sometimes with a drooping hem in back. Navy was there now and then, iced with white colars and cuffs.

But pinks and yellows and whites were the favored hues.

Publishers To Give Strike Views In Writing

NEW YORK (AP) — New York City newspaper publishers report formally in writing today to Mayor Robert F. Wagner on their position in the dispute which led to the 83-day-old blackout of the city's nine major dailies.

Wagner received a similar report Wednesday from Local 6 of the AFL-CIO International Typographical Union whose strike against four of the papers led to the blackout. Contents of the report were not made public.

At the publishers' request, Wagner postponed the time for their report until today.

Wagner—who may soon change his role from mediator to umpire and recommend a settlement formula—had asked for the reports from both sides.

He said his next step would depend on whether the reports "call for any further talks or not."

Wagner received the printers' report here after he returned from Washington where he was a witness Wednesday at a hearing before a congressional subcommittee on President Kennedy's youth employment bill. In Washington, he reiterated his intention to outline non-binding settlement terms of his own in an effort to end the newspaper blackout. He did not say when he would make the move.

The strike by 3,000 printers has thrown 17,000 other newspaper employes out of their regular jobs.

In Cleveland, where 3,000 people have been out of work for 91 days because of strikes against the city's two newspapers, a contract agreement has been reached with a second striking union, the Teamsters.

But the closed-down Plain Dealer and the Press & News and eight other unions still have not reachedcontract terms.

Body Of Caddo Man Found

SHREVEPORT, La. (AP) — The body of Worth Roberts, 50, Shreveport YMCA employe missing since Monday night on Caddo Lake, was recovered Wednesday.

A skin diver found the body about 30 feet from a tree where Roberts and a companion, Mike Buckles, 34, of Dallas, Tex., had clung for four hours after their boat capsized duriny a storm.

Buckles said he was swept from the tree by a wave and managed to struggle to shore.

Record Trash Gathered After Orleans Carnival

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) —Mayor Victor Schiro predicted that Tuesday's Mardi Gras celebration would be the biggest since World War II. The city's sanitation department Wednesday went him one better.

Sanitation director John J. Casreino said his men swept up 1[illegible] tons of trash left by revelers [illegible] the French Quarter, on Canal Street and St. Charles Avenue—[illegible] record not only since World War II, but tops in the city's entire history.

Police Seek Car Taken From Students

NEW ORLEANS (AP)—Police today sought a car taken from two Colorado students who said they were kidnaped and robbed.

Mervin Richard Dowdy, 18, and Elizabeth N. Shook, 19, both of Boulder, Colo., said they were sitting in the car early Wednesday when a man forced them to drive away.

Authorities said Miss Shook was forced out of the car near the Hickory community and Dowdy was robbed of an undisclosed amount of money and forced out two miles farther.

The car, a 1962 blue Chevrolet with New Mexico tags, belonged to Charles T. Closson of Caracas, Venezuela. Dowdy and Miss Shook both University of Colorado students, and Clossin were here for Mardi Gras.

Jack Benny, 'Oklahoma' Beguile New York Fans

NEW YORK (AP)—Two of show world's most noted institutions—Jack Benny and "Oklahoma!"—have simultaneously arrived in town to beguile their legions of fans.

At the Ziegfeld Theater, television's insouciant comic Wednesday night began a six-week engagement, accompanied in a mostly low-pressure revue by a few assisting talents. Around the corner at City Center, the Rodgers-Hammerstein classic began a two-week stand with high-spirited charm.

Benny, who was 69 just two weeks ago, is suavely ebullient in rambling soliloquies that touch most of the matters that have provided his air jests. Expectability in fact turns out to be the main handicap the show battles. It is professionally pleasant and technically polished. There just doesn't happen to be any memorable peak to the maestro's stuff.

Jane Morgan, a blonde charmer whose voice and shape are excellent, is a lovely musical accomplice Feature in first-act finale are the Clara Ward Singers, an aggregation of prancing Gospel singers of endless energy.

The production of "Oklahoma!" —which opened with a near sellout of the engagement —retains the youthful verve and bucolic enchantment of the 1943 original. Betty Barde, the sole member of that long-ago premiere in the present company, rocks along as Aunt Eller, while Peter Palmer and Louise O'Brien make an engaging pair of romantics. Ann Fraser is a likable Ado Annie, and Gabriel Dell is a sly Ali Hakim.

Present plans call for return of "Oklahoma!" with the same cast for a lengthier run in June. Put it on your see-list if you plan to come this way.

Fallout Increases In Parts Of U.S.

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Public Health Service today reported that radioactive fallout increased slightly in several parts of the nation during January but only Palmer, Alaska, was getting a warning level dose of any kind.

For the fifth consecutive month, the PHS reported that Palmer received a 12-month accumulation of iodine 131 that was above the Federal Radiation Council's "acceptable health risk" guide.

Despite increases in some cases, none of the 62 monitoring stations across the nationl recorded monthly or yearly accumulations of strontium 89 or the more dangerous strontium 90 that were anywhere near the warning range.

The closest any cities came to the warning level of 3,000 micro-microcuries of strontium 90 for a 12-month period were New Orleans with 10,854; Little Rock with 10,661 and Jackson, Miss., with 8,740.

New Orleans also made the closest approach to the warning level of 30,000 mmc of strontium 89 for a 12-month period. Its accumulation through January was 16,790 mmc compared with 55,930 for Jackson and 30,580 for Atlanta.

LTCA Presents Fred Waring At Louisiana Tech

RUSTON (Special) — Next feature of the Louisiana Tech Concert Assn. will be Fred Waring and the Pennsylvanians who will present "Wonderful World of Music" here Monday, March 4.

Two shows have been slated for Howard auditorium on Louisiana Tech campus. A matinee for Tech students who are members of LTCA will begin at 2:15 p.m. For non - student members, another performance will be held at 8 p.m.

Waring, who has been touring the nation for 40 years, says he has never failed to make an appearance, although weather conditions have sometimes threatened to cancel a few shows.

The orchestra leader who says he prefers to play before live audiences related numerous times when bad weather threatened to complicate the traveling schedule.

"Once, the show was 40 minutes late in starting," Waring said. "It was in Aberdeen, S. D. and we were traveling by train, at that.

"Our pullman cars were shunted onto a siding and we were delayed. When we finally arrived at the auditorium, we were greeted by a frantic manager," he said.

"We avoided further confusion by unpacking our trunks, tuning up, eating boxed suppers provided by the management and rehearsing — all in full view of the audience," Waring said.

Increase Noted On Local Market

WINNSBORO (Special) — The local cotton market activity showed some improvement over recent weeks. About 200 bales of SLM and LM were purchased at 50-60 points above loan rates and 1261 equities were purchased at $2.00 per bale net to the farmers, the USDA marketing office here reported.

On the Memphis spot market prices remained steady with middling 1-1-16, 35.50; middling 1-1-32, 34.70; SLM 1-1-16, 33.75; SLM, 1-1-32, 33.25; and LM 1-1-16, 31.50 cents per pounds.

State Insurance For Teachers Draws Criticism

LAKE CHARLES (Special) — A Lake Charles insurance man, Harley McCall, has scored the new uniform insurance program for employees of the state Board of Education as a "back alley, closed door, hip pocket affair."

McCall also called for an investigation by the state legislature.

The new insurance program went into effect Tuesday after being approved by the state board following a two - year study. Conducting the study was Dr. Boyd Woodard, a member of the board from Lake Charles.

"If there are any actual specifications, they never left Dr. Woodard or Bill Dodd's hip pocket," he said. Dodd is president of the State Board of Education.

"The bona fide agents are entitled to know exactly how this particular case was handled and why they were not allowed to submit bids if they desired to do so," he said.

McCall urged that the agent who collected the commission be made public and required to disclose the names of persons sharing in the commission.

TELEVISION NOTES

Pierre Careful With Answers

By RICK DU BROW

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — My wife insisted on watching Wednesday night's CBS-TV interview with Pierre Salinger, White House press secretary, because she said she wanted to get a look at a reporter who was making $20,000 a year.

I had my own reasons. I figured that anyone inside the White House who had the common sense to decline one of those 50-mile hikes, and survived, was striking a blow for us all; attention must be paid to such a man.

Well, during the course of his 30-minute interview with Harry Reasoner, Salinger mentioned that he had kidded with the President about being underpaid; but, perhaps tactfully, omitted describing his boss' reaction. In any case, the secretary didn't reveal much, which apparently was his plan of action from the start.

Instead, the half-hour seemed definitely aimed at giving the public-at-large a quick and harmless introduction to Salinger, rather than providing serious news buffs and professionals with a deeper insight and probing—which might have proved embarrassing since the secretary is, after all, a spokesman for others.

On camera, at his modest but pleasantly wooded home in Falls Church, Va., Salinger seemed a bit tense and nervous. And overall, he gave the impression of a man who would rather be plowing into a steak at Ernie's in San Francisco than reading a book by Arthur Schlesinger—but who wouldn't?

Sitting with Reasoner in a couple of chairs near his fireplace, Salinger recounted briefly his serious study as a pianist as a child, and his later experience on the San Francisco Chronicle and Colliers magazine—though little detail of any kind was offered.

Long Remains Silent On His Governor Choice

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — Sen. Russell B. Long continued his silence Wednesday on the gubernatorial candidate of his choice.

The leader of the powerful Long faction in the state was here to confer with political leaders, presumably sounding out their feelings on the governor's race.

Long spoke to many, both in person and by telephone.

"I've been visiting with people in town. We've been talking about matters of the day," he said. "I expect to have something to say shortly but I can't say when it will be, other than it will be in the next couple of days."

Among those visiting the Louisiana senator was Clyde Bel, who as head of the CCDA, supported Chep Morrison for governor. He said he believes Long will remain neutral this time.

Child's Dialing Cute-- Until Phone Bill Comes

WASHINGTON (AP)—The parents of George Basle were puzzled but proud that somehow he had learned to dial the Weather Bureau for the latest forecasts.

"We thought it was real cute and smart," said his mother, Mrs. George A. Basle. "It was a Sunday he first did it. George was praying so bad for it to snow so he could play in it, and he went over to the phone and dialed the weather all by himself. He thought he was real big.

"My husband was proud, very proud. He was walking around with his chest out. Only 6, and already he can dial the weather. We were amazed he could get it so rapidly all the time, even when the weather was bad."

That first Sunday, George called the weather nine times. By Feb. 10 he had called the weather 42 times. Then the Basles received their telephone bill. Surprise, it came to $33 for toll calls. Why?

George's calls all had been to the Weather Bureau in New York City.

Instead of dialing 9361212 for the recorded Washington weather forecast he had, in each of the 42 calls, prefaced the number with 212, the New York City area code for distance dialing.

But everything turned out good for poppa and George. The telephone company canceled the charges after he explained what had happened.

TIME CONSUMING

MILWAUKEE, Wis. (UPI)—Duana M. Farnsworth, 21, and Philip W. Peterson, 29, learned Wednesday that a hoax can be time consuming.

Each was sentenced to a year and a day for causing to be transported in interstate commerce a forged $15 check that was signed Harol Hoax.

Mistreatment Of Negroes Is Charged

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP)—Charges of police mistreatment of Negroes are mounting in upstate New York cities.

Charges were made recently in Rochester and Albany, and the latest came in Buffalo at a meeting of the City Council.

The Negro populations of the northern cities have been growing, and the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People has increased its activities. A spokesman for the NAACP called the police attitude here "Gestapo tactics."

More than 200 persons attended the council meeting Tuesday and heard a Negro spokesman complain that a city patrolman had searched a Negro on a downtown street, taken some money from the man, and told him to "beat it."

A committee of Negroes and whites in Rochester is pressing for the creation of a citizen's review board to study charges of police abuse.

Four Rochester policemen were suspended and later re-instated after A. C. White, a Negro, said he had been beaten and hospitalized following his arrest Jan. 26. White was charged with six misdemeanors, including resisting arrest.

Rochester Negroes also have protested the arrest of 13 members of the Black Muslim sect after a brawl with police Jan. 16. Muslim officials said the police intruded on a closed religious meeting. Police said they were investigating a report that one of the men possessed a firearm.

Veteran Of Seven Wars Dies In Utah

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — Charles Sweeny, a millionaire's son who turned soldier of fortune to fight in seven wars under five flags, died Wednesday—in a hospital bed—of infirmities of age. He was 81.

A native of San Francisco, the tall, erect, ruddy-faced adventurer was one of the organizers of the Lafayette Escadrille in which Americans flew for France during World War I. Before America entered World War II, he organized the Royal Air Force's American "Eagle Squadron."

Sweeny's lust for adventure became apparent at the age of 16, when he enlisted in the U.S. Army and fought in the Spanish-American War.

He returned to graduate from the University of Notre Dame and the U.S. Military Academy at West Point. He rounded out his military education at France's Ecole Militaire.

Sweeny enlisted as a private in the French Foreign Legion in 1914 and rose to the rank of lieutenant colonel within three years. He was transferred to the U.S. Army in 1917 when America entered the war.

Wounded three times, he retired at the end of the war as a colonel.

Pursuing adventure, Sweeny fought as a general in the Polish army against the Bolsheviks, then joined the revolutionary army of Kemal Ataturk of Turkey.

In 1925, he was captain of an American squadron which fought for France in Morocco. He served as a military adviser to the Spanish loyalists in Spain's civil war.

The French Foreign Legion commissioned him a major general in 1939 after the outbreak of World War II.

Sweeny picked out a handful of American adventurers and organized the Eagle Squadron of the French Air Force. When France collapsed, Sweeny and his U.S. flyers crossed the channel to England. Sweeny was given an honorary captaincy in the Royal Air Force as leader of the fledgling American Eagle Squadron.

During his career, Sweeny also served as a correspondent for American publications. He was returned to the United States in 1942, and in 1944 made his home in Salt Lake City.

Fire Destroys 800 Acres Of Grassland

SHREVEPORT (UPI)—A grass fire fanned by gusty winds, destroyed 800 acres of grass land, 50 acres of timber and several outbuildings in a Negro subdivision near here Wednesday.

The fire swept across a portion of the Greater Shreveport Municipal Airport, burning grass and floating a pall of smoke over the field.

It threatened an estimated 100 homes in the Negro area of Mooretown, and families were evacuated until the fire was brought under control three hours later.

There were no injuries and no serious damage to homes, authorities said.

The incident in Albany involves the alleged beating of a Negro after his arrest on a disorderly conduct charge.

Crosley Street Residents Find Some Support

Crosley Street property owners who have complained to the West Monroe City Council that their newly - paved street is being damaged have found some support — but the street remains listed as a truck route.

Property owners appeared at a Council meeting earlier this month, and asked that their street not be used as a truck route. They pointed out that they are still paying for the new pavement on the street, which was part of a street-improvement program concluded last May.

Alderman Mrs. Joyce Smith said today that the street was not constructed to hold up under the weight of heavy trucks, which now are using it.

Crosley was declared a truck route by the city to substitute for Stella Street, in connection with the Interstate 20 highway construction project.

"I have asked the question who is responsible to the people who have paid out their good money for street paving," Mrs. Smith said today. "Who is responsible for that street when it is destroyed? Who should pay for it to be paved again, which is going to be a necessity — a repair job can't do it."

Admiral Tells Of Polaris Progress

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Navy's Polaris boss said today British-U.S. negotiators have made enormous strides in working out arrangements for creating a British missile firing submarine force.

The talks should be wrapped up in about a week or 10 days, Rear Adm. Ignatius J. Galantin told The Associated Press.

Galantin, a principal figure in the talks, disclosed that British naval experts had started out with the idea that they could save money by building smaller subs with fewer missiles than the American version.

But, Galantin said, "we were able to point out to the British" that they could save only about 5 per cent of the cost by limiting their submarines to eight Polaris missiles rather than 16.

This is because certain vital—and very expensive—fire control, navigation and other special equipment would have to be mounted in the submarines regardless of the number of missiles.

The British will start with four submarines, Galantin said, and "we don't know whether they will go beyond four or not."

The technical talks now are revolving around the question of whether the British will use American training, test and other facilities or whether they will provide their own.

The Polaris chief said "studies will show that the most economical" course would be for the British to contract with the United States to train crews and to use missile firing ranges like that off Cape Canaveral, Fla.

British Prime Minister Harold Macmillan said last month that if Britain decides to buy the most advanced Polaris missile—a 2,880-mile range weapon—for its subs it will pay an additional 5 per cent of the production price as a share of development costs.

However, he said that Britain would be able to buy the existing shorter range Polaris missiles at production prices without any contribution to the $2 billion already spent by the United States in research and development.

The negotiations have been moving ahead against a background of growing political controversy in Britain over the question of building a costly fleet of Polaris subs to operate under the Union Jack.

It has been estimated four submarines would cost the British $700 million.

Police Report 2 Thefts Cleared With Arrests

The West Monroe police department has cleared two theft cases, which occurred earlier this year, with the apprehension of two men.

A Bossier City Negro, Jerry Lee Anderson, 22, Route 1, Box 640, was held for Bossier authorities on a count of automobile theft.

He was apprehended at 12:10 a.m. on Cypress street Wednesday on four counts, including driving while under the influence of intoxicating beverages, reckless driving, no driver's license and automobile theft.

Anderson was allegedly driving a stolen car when arrested. The vehicle had been taken earlier in the night at Bossier City.

Booked for felony theft was William Meyerring, 25, 505 Mill street, West Monroe, who is charged with theft of a television set in January. The set was reported taken from Gibson's Wholesale, where he allegedly obtained the set through the use of fraudulent practices.

Also being investigated by West Monroe police is the theft of a shotgun from the home of P. C. Gaston, 1108 North Third street, West Monroe.

In other action, two persons were booked for violation of the parish alcoholic ordinances. The two were identified as John Wesley Morgan, 33, 1117 Alabama street, Monroe, and V. T. Watson, 605 North Fifth street, West Monroe.

Morgan was booked for the second time in two days.

They are charged with operating a "business or place of entertainment, the Southside Club, wherein alcoholic beverages and intoxicating liquors were consumed between the hours of 12 midnight Feb. 26 and 6 a.m. Feb. 2."

Watson operates the South End Bar, which is housed in the same building with the Southside Club.

Both were released on bonds of $1,000.
